BULLS' HARD WORK KEEPS STOCK PRICES ON UPGRADE

Important Issues Throughout List Marked Up 2 to 3 1/2 Points—Tobacco Shares Especial Favorites With Operators.

Trading is dull when prices sag.

Wheat Again Is Soft, but Corn and Cotton Are Firm—Some Industrial Leaders Take Cheerful View of Business.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The group of professional bull operators who are trying to push the stock market into new high ground for the recovery, made further progress today, but still lacked solid support and were forced to shift the focal point of activity frequently to keep the list pointed higher.

The list was inclined to waver at times and seemed a bit weary of bullish stimulation, but operators were encouraged by the fact that trading turned extremely dull whenever the market showed signs of sagging. Professional speculators seemed largely committed to the cause of higher prices. Such traders as remained bearish mostly liked the courage to act according to their convictions.

Tobacco Stocks Favorites.

The turnover in the utilities and the merchandising shares was large. The independent steel and some of the other shares for a time, but this was soon checked by vigorous buying of the utilities. The tobacco and natural gas stocks were also speculative favorites. Most of the leading industrial leaders showed signs of recovery. General Motors showed signs of recovery and the stock closed a fraction lower.

Commission house business was still extremely small volume, but some of the leading wire houses sent out several trading suggestions. There was a determined effort to drive in shorts in several issues, and this seemed to meet with some success in the utility division. It was feared about the street early in the day that shorts were to be swept in. But the stock closed only two points higher.

Important banking interests were said to be large buyers of Kreuger & Co. stock. The independent steel and some of the other shares for a time, but this was soon checked by vigorous buying of the utilities. The tobacco and natural gas stocks were also speculative favorites. Most of the leading industrial leaders showed signs of recovery. General Motors showed signs of recovery and the stock closed a fraction lower.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—A review of the detention at Ellis Island, New York, of Miss Elsa Hewitt, daughter of George Hewitt, a Labor member of the English Parliament, was begun today by the Labor Department.

W. W. Husband, Assistant Secretary of Labor, examined the record to determine whether she should be admitted to teach music at the Manhattan School, a Labor preparatory institution at Pawling, N. Y. The Assistant Secretary said Miss Hewitt had been detained because of a technicality over her visa. She had a nonquota visa and Ellis Island officials ruled she should have a quota visa for admission as a teacher.

$10,000,000 CLAIMS AGAINST NEGRO WHO LEFT NO ESTATE

Action Filed Against Prospective Royalties of Chicagoan Who Said He Invented Trolley.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Claims aggregating $10,000,000 have been made against the estate of Robert Robinson, Negro, who died Dec. 25, 1924, after fighting for years to obtain royalties from railroads and street car companies on his assertion that he invented the electric trolley.

Although Robinson left virtually no estate, about $3,000,000 in claims were filed after his death, based on notes signed by Robinson. Yesterday 157 new claims were filed in Probate Court, bringing the total to more than $10,000,000.

They Face Loss of Jobs for Undue Participation in Election, Posters Say.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Federal employees under civil service have been warned that any undue participation in election campaigning may mean the loss of their jobs. The Civil Service Commission today said workers to be classified employees must not be extended unduly. Similar warnings have been issued in recent years.

CHICAGO GANGSTERS THROW ANOTHER VICTIM FROM AUTO

Police Think Peter Nicastro Sought to Bootleg in West Side Territory.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Peter Nicastro's body, with four bullets in the head, was thrown from a curbed automobile at South Canal street and Archer avenue early today. He was alive when picked up, but died before police could obtain a statement from him.

The police supposition is that Nicastro, who was 21 years old, was slain because of his reputed status as a bootlegger in the territory of a West Side bootleg gang. He was not well known to officers, and so far as an early check record disclosed, he had no police record.

U. S. IMMIGRATION RULES TIGHTENED TO HELP JOBLESS

President Announces Plan to Reduce Number of Aliens Who Might Become Public Charges.

EXTRA PRECAUTIONS IN EUROPEAN PORTS

Consul Generals Instructed to Look More Carefully Into Financial Status of Visa Applicants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—President Hoover announced today that the State Department had moved to alleviate the unemployment situation by tightening immigration restrictions on aliens who might become public charges.

Consul Generals who issue visas for immigration to the United States have been instructed to inquire more carefully into the financial status of the applicant.

The extent to which this will affect the volume of immigration to this country or its effect on employment has not been estimated. The President said officials expected a sharp decrease in the number of persons who formerly have come to America and have been unable to support themselves.

Mr. Hoover said the restrictions would not affect preferences given to relatives of aliens who already have come to this country.

In March, 1929, similar restrictions in regard to Mexico were imposed, leading to a sharp decrease in the number of immigrants crossing the Mexican border. To a lesser extent these restrictions also have been applied to Canada.

State Department figures show that during July only 224 Mexicans received visas for entry into the United States. During the last six months, only 3140 Mexicans have entered this country, bringing the yearly average to about 6280 as compared with the average of 16,747 for the last five fiscal years.

The State Department estimated the reduction of Mexican immigration at 88.9 per cent.

Consul Monnett B. Davis is in Canada studying the immigration situation, but figures for the reduction from that country have not been tabulated.

Under the new plan, European ports are to be watched particularly. Two conferences of American consular officers will be held in Europe shortly to carry out President Hoover's desires. Assistant Secretary of State Wilbur J. Carr, now in Europe, will attend both. One will be held in London and the other at a place not yet decided.

James Hood of Deerfield Reports She Took $100 After He Had Bought Her Dinner.

James Hood, Mayor of Deerfield, Ill., has asked police to search for a purse which vanished from his hip pocket last night when he was embraced unexpectedly by a young woman in the lobby of a downtown hotel.

Mayor Hood, 58 years old and married, arrived in St. Louis yesterday. He told a policeman he was accosted in front of his hotel by a young woman who complained of unemployment and hunger and invited her to dinner.

Later, as he escorted her into another hotel, where she said she lived, Hood realized she had thrown her arms about his neck. A moment later she ran out and climbed into an automobile which drove away.

Hood said he was willing to forget about his cash, $100 in currency, if he could recover important papers and cards which were in his purse.

G. O. P. PLATFORM FOR STATE SURVEY PROGRAM, IN PART

Missouri Party Opposes Unlimited Support of Schools, but Favors Aid for Hospitals.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

A staff correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Sept. 9.—Gov. Caulfield's complete domination of the Republican party in Missouri was shown by the draft of the party platform, completed last night for submission today to the Republican State convention, where its adoption without material alteration is expected.

The platform in its more important phase, that of the report of the State Survey Commission for an expenditure of nearly $200,000,000 in 12 years on a program of improvement and expansion of State activities, is a Caulfield production, and is taken as accurately forecasting the Governor's recommendations to the next Legislature.

It falls short of approving the commission's program of almost unlimited State support of common schools and the State university, and disagrees with the commission on its plan for abolishing the State property tax. Only in the matter of relieving the State of the burden of the penal and eleemosynary institutions does it appear to be in accord with the commission's plan.

Recognizing the progress of the State demands for extensive expenditures, the platform indicates a decided unwillingness to commit the State to a program of such magnitude. The common school plan proposed in the commission's report was that the tax rate of school districts should be fixed at a maximum of 20 cents on the $100. Instead of the maximum of 65 cents now paid in some districts and $1 paid in others. It then proposed that the State supply the additional funds required to maintain all the common schools at a definite standard. The Governor, it is known, has not looked on this as the proper solution of the school problem, which has resulted from the fact that there were many districts in the State which could not obtain sufficient school revenue by the maximum tax, while others obtained more than enough by levying for less than the maximum. The commission's plan, the Governor is said to have pointed out, would relieve wealthy districts of taxes that could well be spared, and would require the State to pay costs which should be met locally.

The platform approves additional State aid only for these districts where a need is shown. More money for universities.

Although the platform is specific in its recommendation for relieving overcrowded conditions and fire hazards in penal and eleemosynary institutions, it only approves "more liberal provisions for the State University and State Teachers' Colleges, which is also in accord with the Governor's views.

The Survey Commission urged that the State property tax be abolished. The platform pointedly withholds approval of the recommendation by a plank which opposes any increase in the property tax. It suggests that, if additional revenue is needed, it should be obtained from sources of taxation other than property. Seemingly this accepts the commission's view that the additional funds required to reduce by many millions the financial requirements, and would not mean a material increase in the income tax.

A plank of unusual ordinary importance deals with the water power resources of the State, advocating use of these resources under strict State regulation, and to yield to the State a revenue. It means that the Rep. plan party is pledged to the institution of a State tax on the huge Bagnell project of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. and on all hydroelectric developments in the State.

Power to Deny Permits.

It also means that the Republican administration will attempt to pass legislation giving the State the power to deny permits for the construction of such projects. Un-

MAIL-BANK ROBBER SUSPECT CAUGHT, SOUGHT 2 YEARS

Harry Lee Watson Arrested in $30,000 Home Near Raymondville, Mo., by Postal Inspectors

Also Wanted for Murder in Detroit

Accused of $14,000 Holdup of Maplewood Depository and Crimes in Five Other States.

By the Associated Press.

Raymondville, Mo., Sept. 9.—Harry Lee Watson, arrested yesterday by Postoffice inspectors in an elaborate country house he had erected in Southern Missouri, has been sought for two years for numerous bank and postoffice robberies in the Middle West, including the $14,000 holdup of the Citizens' National Bank of Maplewood in March, 1929.

Rewards totaling more than $20,000 for his capture and conviction have piled up during the two years that witnesses and former associates have implicated him in various crimes.

He was the thorn in the side of Alfred A. Oliver, former convict of Richmond Heights, whose photograph has been frequently identified in bank cases by witnesses who, however, changed their minds later and identified Watson instead.

The long list of robberies in which Watson was sought includes banks in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas and Colorado. He is sought as a distributor of forged express money orders and railroad drafts, as a fur thief and as one of the men who killed a policeman in the $14,000 Detroit News payroll hold-up in 1923.

Trained for a Year.

Fred Reuter, Postoffice inspector in charge here, said today that his men had kept a year behind Watson for more than a year, trailing him about 150 miles from St. Louis, as he toured around in an automobile with a Kansas license.

Several months ago the trail was lost but inspectors watched the mail of a brother of Watson, living in an Iowa city, and learned yesterday where he was. Inspector C. H. Baker went to Raymondville, Texas County, an isolated Oak Grove about 150 miles from St. Louis, and found Watson putting the finishing touches to his $30,000 home. Posing as a wealthy showman, he had "settled down" about a month ago purchasing a 260-acre farm and living in a tent while his house was being built.

Inspector Baker, who was assisted in the raid by Sheriff Harry Kelly of Texas County, found an arsenal of shotguns, revolvers and other weapons in the 10-room house which Watson declared he planned to operate as a hotel and resort. Baker's opinion, however, was that Watson had intended to set up an elaborate hide-out for criminals.

Clew in Illinois Holdup.

Baker reported that he found four men and a woman in stock shares in the house which definitely linked Watson with a bank and postoffice robbery at Troy Grove, Ill., July 9, last, as well as $4000 worth of Governor's bonds stolen in a bank robbery at Pomonca, Kan.

Watson was named as "one of three men who robbed the Citizens' Bank in Maplewood in May, 1929, and who were fatally wounded in an attempt to rob the Fountain Square Bank of Indianapolis in May, 1929.

Before dying in an Indianapolis hospital, Landry said that he, Watson and another man robbed the bank and named Watson and his accomplice, Billie Devore Watson, as his accomplices in the Indianapolis robbery. Apparently Watson was wounded in escaping, for an automobile was found the next day in Illinois containing a blood-stained coat, a bottle of iodine and a pair of trousers marked "H. W."

Oliver Mistaken for Watson.

Oliver, who had lived quietly in Richmond Heights as a real estate dealer, having served a term for a $25,000 mail train robbery here in 1926, was arrested in the Maplewood robbery in the Indianapolis robbery and in a $200,000 bank robbery at Lamar, Colo., in which four men were killed. In each of the cases, his photographs were identified by witnesses who with-drew identification when they looked at him personally. Bertillon records describe Watson as a "pale, thin, dark, middle-aged man" with the Lamar bank robbery.

Watson is held at Springfield pending a decision as to which of the many charges against him will be prosecuted first. It was considered unlikely that he would be brought here because of the more serious nature of charges elsewhere.

SEVEN KILLED, 56 WOUNDED IN BUENOS AIRES FOLLOWING FALSE REPORT OF REVOLT

Senatorial Nominee Victor by 30,000 Over Democrat—Total Vote Small—Since Woman Suffrage

ALL CONGRESSMEN ARE REPUBLICAN

Gubernatorial Nominee Loses Two Counties, and Has Slump in Several Others.

By the Associated Press.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Maine stood fast in the Republican column today after its off-year biennial election in which Representative Wallace H. White Jr., who has served the Second Maine Congressional District for 11 years, was advanced to the seat in the United States senate now held by Senator Arthur R. Gould.

Gardner, who two years ago swamped Edward C. Moran, Rockland Democrat, with an 8,000 majority, got but 16,000 over Moran yesterday. It was the smallest majority for a Republican Governor since 1918, when Carl E. Milliken won by 5,000.

Two years ago, Gardner carried all the counties of the State. Yesterday he lost Knox, Moran's home county, and Penobscot, in the East Cumberland County which in 1928 gave him a 13,000 majority, gave but 10,000 majority this year, and York, which gave him a 7,000 majority the previous election, gave less than 3,000. Other counties which gave him from 2,000 to 4,000 advantage over Moran in 1928 gave him a bare majority this year.

The vote totaled 147,000, the smallest since 1920, when women were granted suffrage, and compared to a total of 213,000 two years ago.

The vote in 587 precincts out of 622, with all missing precincts in small towns and plantations which could not affect the vote to any great extent.

For United States Senator: White (Rep.), 87,023; Haskell (Dem.), 56,003.

For Governor: Gardner (Rep.), 82,147; Moran (Dem.), 62,000.

Joseph Shouse, chairman, said the Democratic National Committee did not contribute a penny to the Maine campaign, and did not send a single speaker into the State.

Result An Indorsement of Hoover, Says Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican National Committee, cited the Republican victory in Maine today as a rebuke to the Democrats "in their efforts to make a campaign issue out of the distress of the people in a world-wide economic depression."

The Senator regarded the result as the greatest victory in an off-year in 24 years, with a single exception. He added it was an indorsement of President Hoover and said it demonstrated that in spite of the attacks directed against the chief executive, he was gaining in popular esteem.

In a statement issued at party headquarters, he said: "The reply of the Maine voters to the Democratic talk in enacting the tariff to protect the American wage earners, the nation looks to the Democrats that concern about foreign interests as against American interests is always a losing issue."

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 9.—Former United States Senator Peter G. Gerry today announced his candidacy for the United States Senate and will seek the indorsement of the Democratic party at the State convention in this city Oct. 1.

Two years ago, Gardner carried all the counties of the State. Yesterday he lost Knox, Moran's home county, and Penobscot, in the East Cumberland County which in 1928 gave him a 13,000 majority, gave but 10,000 majority this year, and York, which gave him a 7,000 majority the previous election, gave less than 3,000. Other counties which gave him from 2,000 to 4,000 advantage over Moran in 1928 gave him a bare majority this year.

The vote totaled 147,000, the smallest since 1920, when women were granted suffrage, and compared to a total of 213,000 two years ago.

The vote in 587 precincts out of 622, with all missing precincts in small towns and plantations which could not affect the vote to any great extent.

For United States Senator: White (Rep.), 87,023; Haskell (Dem.), 56,003.

For Governor: Gardner (Rep.), 82,147; Moran (Dem.), 62,000.

Joseph Shouse, chairman, said the Democratic National Committee did not contribute a penny to the Maine campaign, and did not send a single speaker into the State.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Senator Fess, chairman of the Republican National Committee, cited the Republican victory in Maine today as a rebuke to the Democrats "in their efforts to make a campaign issue out of the distress of the people in a world-wide economic depression."

The Senator regarded the result as the greatest victory in an off-year in 24 years, with a single exception. He added it was an indorsement of President Hoover and said it demonstrated that in spite of the attacks directed against the chief executive, he was gaining in popular esteem.

In a statement issued at party headquarters, he said: "The reply of the Maine voters to the Democratic talk in enacting the tariff to protect the American wage earners, the nation looks to the Democrats that concern about foreign interests as against American interests is always a losing issue."

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 9.—Maine stood fast in the Republican column today after its off-year biennial election in which Representative Wallace H. ## FOOD SHIPS REACH SANTO DOMINGO; RIOT SUPPRESSED

Many Inhabitants Unfed Since Hurricane Rush Laborers Unloading Supplies—Water Shortage.

GANGRENE SERUM IS SENT BY PLANE

Thirteen Emergency Hospitals Set Up—Pope Sends Contribution to Relief Fund.

By the Associated Press. SANTO DOMINGO, Sept. 9.—Food and water for Santo Domingo's thousands today became a problem of increasing importance to national and Red Cross authorities.

Soldiers of the Dominican Guardia, with United States sailors standing by, suppressed a food riot yesterday at one of the wharves where relief supplies were being unloaded from the United States destroyer-mine sweeper Grebe.

More than 100 persons watched until the supplies had been placed on the wharf and then rushed the laborers. Soldiers held off the rioters while speakers assured the crowds that the rations would be distributed as soon as possible. Most of the crowd had not had a meal since Wednesday, when the hurricane struck the city.

While considerable food has arrived for relief purposes by the steamships Ruth Lyken and Catherine and the Grebe from Porto Rico, and in the steamship Tryon's cargo of rice from Europe the amount has been little compared to what is needed. Vessels have been forced to anchor in the Caribbean while launches and small boats took their cargoes to shore.

Lack of water has become almost as serious as lack of food, but an aqueduct 7 1/2 miles repaired for bringing water from inland sources.

No Effort to Report Dead.

A survey shows that more than 1200 seriously injured patients are receiving treatment in 13 hospitals and impromptu first aid stations in the city. Many of them suffer from gangrenous infections.

Loss of life has been so great that no effort to report deaths to a central office has been made. Cremation still continues.

Roosevelt Emergency Hospital—so named by President Trujillo for Gov. Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico—will be open today, giving greatly needed facilities to the overworked doctors and nurses. It will have 1000 beds, which will be devoted to patients needing emergency treatment or minor surgery.

Many refugees boarded the steamer Catherine for San Juan, and later will go to the United States.

Inquiries at the United States consulate confirmed earlier reports that no citizens of the United States are among the killed or injured. A similar check by the British consulate also indicated that all Canadian and other Britons from the United Kingdom are safe, but some British subjects who came from Jamaica as laborers may be added later to the casualty list.

Taking precautions against typhoid, the Pan-American Airways has had all its employees vaccinated, including the pilots who landed while flying over the Greater Antilles.

Motor transportation service, always readily obtained before the hurricane because of the great number of taxicabs, now is completely paralyzed, many of the vehicles having been destroyed and numerous of their drivers dead or injured.

Pope Sends Contribution and Message of Sympathy.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 9.—The Pope has forwarded a contribution to Santo Domingo for the relief of the hurricane victims. The amount was not made known.

Cardinal Pacelli, Papal secretary of State, sent a message to the Dominican nation expressing the Pontiff's sympathy and the apostolic benediction.

Plane With Medical Supplies Takes Off at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Laden with medical supplies and surgical instruments, a Naval transport plane, piloted by Lieut. A. P. Storrs, took off from the Navy yard here today on the first leg of a flight to Santo Domingo.

The plane was one of three ordered by the Navy Department to carry supplies, requested by the Dominican Government, for treatment of thousands of cases of gangrene rampant since the hurricane devastated the city a week ago.

SEVEN ARE KILLED, 56 WOUNDED IN ARGENTINE FIGHTING

that a strong body of counter-revolutionary troops was moving against Buenos Aires. This report reached the guard on the central postoffice building.

Street Lamps Shot Out.

The guard on the roof, heavily armed with machine guns and light artillery, prepared to descend to the streets. Before doing so they began shooting out the street lamps in order better to defend their position.

The postoffice is only two blocks from the Government House, which also was heavily defended by other troops with light artillery and machine guns. Hearing the firing, the soldiers at Government House took it for granted that another counter-revolutionary attack had broken out around the postoffice, and opened on the postoffice with artillery and machine guns.

Traffic disappeared from the streets, the citizens taking cover precipitately wherever there was opportunity.

In this confusion, certain elements of the people looted arms and ammunition stores and ran into the streets to take part in the fighting.

Meanwhile partisans of Uriburu went to the arsenals and police stations asking for arms.

They were speedily armed and stationed at various street intersections and strategic points to maintain order. They co-operated with soldiers and police in preventing any hostile movements around the National Treasury and other Government buildings.

The confusion kept up during the night and the looking spread.

The citizens, at first appearing cautiously on the streets today, began to take stock of things and realize for the first time that counter-revolution had not broken out.

Provisional President Uriburu issued a statement ordering the surrender of all arms in the possession of private persons within 12 hours.

In cases of non-compliance with this decree, the possession of such arms will be subject to martial law," the order continued.

"Anyone knowing of persons possessing such above-mentioned arms is ordered immediately to communicate his information to the Minister of War."

The Minister of War, in the same connection, also issued a pronouncement.

"Without doubt a certain alarm has been produced by the occurrences of last night, but it is necessary for the populace to know that the Government is resolved to take extreme measures to maintain order."

"In the city there are certainly many elements still partisans to the former Government. The Government took stringent measures to control and sharply supervise all transportation and communications systems. Buenos Aires, until all danger is averted, will be administered like an armed fortress."

Reports were current in the streets this morning that a motor launch carrying Senator Del Valle, Trigoysista leader in the Senate, and a party of the fallen President's followers, had landed at Carmelo, Uruguay.

Among the citizens storming an arms store last night were elements identified with Irigoyen's "kian radical." They fought off a Government force barricaded themselves in the store and were driven out only when soldiers set fire to the building.

This morning it was said that "three or four" postoffice clerks had been summarily executed by a firing squad after they had been discovered shooting from behind at the soldiers defending the postoffice.

Some of those executed was said to be Sub-Director of Posts Pirpo. He is not related to the boxer.

Fine Quarter of City Damaged.

The disastrous effect of the shooting was apparent in the finest quarters of the city today.

The Plaza de Mayo and the space between the Government House and the Central Postoffice was a scene of destruction. Scarcely a window fronting on the area remained unbroken. Street lamps were smashed and buildings pockmarked by bullets.

Cavalry units, rationed and armed as if for a heavy campaign, were drawn up in formation several ranks deep around the principal railroad stations.

Detachments of sailors from the fleet were landed shortly after dawn and bivouacked at strategic points in the streets.

FIVE KILLED, 12 HURT IN ENGINE EXPLOSION

Bodies Thrown 15 Feet in Air in Reading Yards at Philadelphia.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—At least five men were killed and 12 injured today in the explosion of a pusher locomotive in the Reading Railroad round house yard at Third street and Erie avenue.

The dead: John Biemiller, round house foreman; John Kelly, inspector; Frederick Spangler, engineer; Crawford Dunstun, car shopman; James P. Smith, car shopman.

Some of the men were blown 15 to 20 feet in the air and landed on a nearby embankment.

It is the rule to inspect all locomotives each morning. The pusher had been brought out on the turntable and had been taken off again, but stopped about 100 feet away. Spangler discovered something wrong with the injector and called the round house foreman.

A number of men gathered about the engine and while the examination was in progress the explosion took place.

HURLEY LEAVES ST. LOUIS TO CONTINUE RIVER SURVEY

Secretary of War and Party Start for New Orleans to Inspect Flood Control Works.

Secretary of War Hurley and the Army engineers accompanying him on an inspection trip of the Mississippi River left St. Louis yesterday for their trip downstream. They expect to be in New Orleans about Sept. 15.

Secretary Hurley returned late yesterday by airplane from Oklahoma, where he addressed the American Legion convention. Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army Engineers, also rejoined the party in St. Louis yesterday. He had made an airplane and boat inspection of the Missouri River between St. Louis and Kansas City.

The War Secretary plans to have his private airplane accompany the inspection party. He will use it to survey flood control works at Cape Girardeau and proposed floodways near the mouth of the river.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—An American Vice Consul in Buenos Aires was commended by cable yesterday to the State Department for "bravery and devotion" in defying rifle fire during the Argentine revolution to obtain the release of an American citizen.

Informing that Frederick Henry Radel of Chicago had been imprisoned by the military police, charged with the possession of a revolver, the cable said Vice Consul Ralph Miller of New York City traversed on three occasions streets swept by sporadic rifle fire before obtaining Radel's freedom.

Avra M. Warren, American Consul in Buenos Aires, in commending Miller for bravery reported that the case of Radel was the only demand made upon the Consulate for protection of American life and property following the proclamation of martial law in the city last Friday.

NOLTE REPEATS REFUSAL TO SIGN BRIDGE CONTRACTS

Comptroller Insists on Amendments Asked for by Alton & Southern and Merchants' Exchange.

Comptroller Nolte again today refused to sign the city's contracts with the Terminal Railroad Association providing for immediate construction of five new approaches to the Municipal Bridge and the partial freeing of the Eads Bridge of tolls, unless certain amendments are incorporated.

He announced his decision after a two-hour conference with interested parties at the City Hall to which newspaper reporters were not admitted.

Nolte's reason for not admitting reporters was that the matter might be discussed more frankly in their absence.

Besides Nolte and Mayor Miller, who has signed the contracts, those attending the conference were City Counselor Muench, Cleveland A. Newton, special counsel for the bridge committee of the Board of Aldermen; Daniel Bartlett, attorney for the Alton & Southern Railroad; Thomas L. Phillips, attorney for the Merchants' Exchange, and Thomas Pierce, attorney for the Terminal Association.

Proposed Amendments.

The proposed amendments apply only to the contract for construction of the Municipal Bridge approaches and use of that bridge by the Terminal and other railroads.

They are sponsored by Bartlett and Phillips and provide, first, that the new approaches shall be available for use by all railroads on equal terms, and second, that in event the city authorizes the Terminal to operate the interlocking system on the bridge it shall be operated impartially as to all railroads whether members of the Commission.

City Counselor Muench and Newton said after the conference they are still of the opinion the amendments are unnecessary, the city and other railroads being fully protected by the terms of the contract.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE

(Copyright, 1930.) NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 9.

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN of the American Federation of Labor is in a sound position when he opposes adding the wage earners with a dose system. His suggestion of part-time employment for all rather than full-time for a part is fair, and the usual practice of employers. But the employer is only an agent. He cannot employ unless he can sell his output. To do so would only pile up inventories and only prolong the misery of depression. What Mr. Green seems to mean is that at times the employer should operate to give work with little or no profit. The reports of too many industries show they are now operating despite a loss.

The entire progress of our wage earners is towards full co-operation and partnership. They have been raised to new dignity and must themselves assume new responsibilities. The employer cannot produce unless they buy. If they will live up to that end of the partnership they will start a movement that will eliminate the 10 per cent reduction in business that causes our trouble. The buying power of everybody if used is amply sufficient to support everybody. When business is declining the people can not expect to increase savings.

FRENCH FLYERS DROP FLOWERS IN HONOR OF WAR AGE

By the Associated Press.

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Sept. 9.—The French trans-Atlantic flyers, Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Beloin, landed at Curtiss Field at 12:45 p. m. today from Washington. They flew over New York airport and dropped flowers in memory of Maj. John A. Donaldson, war ace, who was killed in Philadelphia Sunday in an air crash.

The official welcome in Washington ended for Coste and Beloin last night with a dinner in their honor by the Washington Board of Trade. Among the 1000 guests were Vice President Curtis, Gen. Pershing and Col. Edward V. Rickenbacker, World War ace.

Curtis and Rickenbacker spoke briefly, and when Coste rose to respond he received an ovation that lasted until he raised his hand for silence.

Bodies in Crypt at Tromsø, Norway, Awaiting the Remains of Frankel.

By the Associated Press. TROMSØ, Norway, Sept. 9.—The bodies of Salomon Auguste Andree and Nils Strindberg, who lost their lives 33 years ago in attempt to fly across the North Pole in a balloon, rested today in a provisional crypt in the southern corner of the Little Tromsø Church.

Norwegian sailors carried the bodies there after a funeral service had been said over them by Pastor Knut Frankel, who recalled in his sermon that two years ago memorial services were held in the same church for Rold Amundsen.

The bodies will remain in the crypt until after arrival of the sealer Isbjorn with the body of the third member of the party, Kn

U. S. JUDGE FARIS OPENS FIELD DAY ON LEEVE SUITS

59 Government Condemnation Actions on Docket for Week in Federal Court at Cape Girardeau.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Sept. 9.—Difficulties over "dividing the spoils," as Judge Faris has facetiously described it, boiled up at the start of his flood control "field day" in Federal Court here yesterday.

The week's docket is filled by 59 Government condemnation suits for right of way of the Southeast Missouri seaboard levee. Judge Faris set this "field day" with the avowed intention of "trying these floodway cases until you are sick and tired of them." He indicated, however, that he hoped at the end of the week to discharge the jury, which was excused until today to begin the first of the jury trials.

Meanwhile, five of the cases were disposed of, with compensation judgments totaling $10,744, in a maximum of 10 minutes each. Two of these were settled by agreement for a total of $1054 less than viewers' awards. Judgments confirming the viewers' awards were entered in two others, in which neither side filed exceptions. The fifth was settled by agreement on ceding the award by $275, which represented the amount by which moving reduced the value of certain buildings. The awards, in all these cases, were among those made after the viewers' following adjudication of values by the Court, had revised their scale downwards.

Levee Districts Interest.

The large question of when the actual landholder will get his compensation—and how much he will get—came up in the first case to come before the court for judgment in Mrs. Martin's settlement for $740, for 6.24 acres of land for which viewers had submitted an award of $1568.

As in other settlements, Judge Faris entered judgment of condemnation for the Government and compensation for Mrs. Martin in the amount agreed upon, after hearing testimony of Theodore T. Knappen, Government engineer in charge of the Cape area, to the acreage taken, and Knappen's testimony that the agreement had been made. R. F. Baynes of New Madrid, attorney for St. John levee and drainage district, asked permission to file a claim for the interest of that district.

"I'd like to have some of you gentlemen brief that matter very thoroughly," remarked Judge Faris. "I have never been tremendously impressed with any of the arguments offered so far as to whether a levee or drainage district has any interest in these cases."

"We have had an audit made of the exact interest in each case," Baynes responded, "so that the entire matter can be placed before the Court, whenever the Court is ready to receive it."

"Getting a little closer,"

"You are taking it, I judge—at least I hope—in units of 40 acres," suggested Judge Faris. "I don't think you have anything to do with a 40 acres which is not touched."

"We are taking it that way," said Baynes. The Court smiled. "That's good," remarked Judge Faris. "We are getting a little closer together."

He gave the attorney two days to file his claims in this case and two others of the five decided yesterday.

The basis of the levee and drainage district claims was explained by James A. Boone of Charleston, attorney for levee districts No. 1 and 2. Boone said that benefits were assessed against each acre of land within the improvements were made. Yearly thereafter a certain percentage of the benefits was taxed against each acre. Bonds exhausted the amount of benefits, but in many cases still had years to run before they would be paid up. By this procedure, Boone explained, if 10 per cent of the acreage were taken for the setback levee, their 10 per cent of the assessed benefits were forever lost to the district.

As to Distribution.

Judge Faris sustained a motion of Special Assistant Attorney-General John C. Dyott to strike from the record an exception filed by Boone to one award, since it did not question the amount of the award, but presented, instead, a question of distributing the award.

"Gabriel would blow his horn before we finished these cases," Judge Faris commented, "if juries had flashed before them these highly technical questions not only of law, but also of fact, and had to determine the exact interest of every claimant in the distribution of these awards."

"That question is a matter which may be settled in 10 minutes between bondholder or lienholder and landholder. They can figure it out as a simple problem of mathematics, on the relation of the land taken to the entire holding."

When Baynes obtained permission to file the levee and drainage districts claim in his third case, Judge Faris smiled, "and look up, while you're at it, these questions: Show me where the money is going to be allocated, who gets it; and when, and how credits are to be made after the money is paid out. I've asked those questions of 40 lawyers and haven't got an answer yet."

CUP DEFENDER IS APPROVED

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 9.—The legality of the boom of the America's Cup defender, Enterprise, which had been questioned by George Nichols of the Morgan interest, builders of the unsuccessful contender Westmore, was upheld in a letter from George A. Cormack, secretary of the America's Cup Committee, yesterday.

Cormack told Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of the Enterprise, that so far as the cup committee was concerned, the boom that holds the sails spread of the chosen defender may remain intact.

Back with you tomorrow Dorothy Chase and the Charis Players

This announcement will interest every woman... tomorrow brings back those radio favorites, Dorothy Chase and the Charis Players in new, unusual radio programs.

The thousands of women who enjoyed CHARIS Dramatizations last spring will find the new programs this fall even more delightful. Charming Dorothy Chase, confidante of many listeners, again acts as mistress of ceremonies—and she, Eileen Douglass and Frances Hessey vividly portray the interesting Dramatization characters. The glorious voice of Miss Hessey in song and marvelous selections by the CHARIS Musicians are other delights.

An added feature of particular interest consists of timely and authentic fashion suggestions by Dorothy Chase, based on her recent visit to Paris. You are invited by the CHARIS Office listed below to enjoy these programs every week—just tune in this station:

KMOX

Wednesday, 11:30 A. M.

If, after hearing a CHARIS Dramatization, you wish to examine CHARIS in your home—for it is not sold in stores—please write or phone the address below. A Representative will come to your home by appointment, to show you, in private, the exclusive features of this inimitable foundation garment.

Charis is priced from $6.95 up. The garment illustrated is priced at $9.50.

Raskob's Radio Campaign Speaker. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will head a group of radio speakers for Democrats in the forthcoming campaign. Raskob will speak over a National Broadcasting hookup the night of Sept. 15 at 7 p. m. on "The Tariff From a Business Man's Standpoint." Plans already have been made for Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James Cox to speak later in the campaign.

MAN, 26, IN JAIL 11 OF 12 YEARS, BACK AGAIN IN CELL. Alva E. Swessa Admits Robbing Postoffice and Forgery Money Order. Alva E. Swessa, 26 years old, who told Postoffice Inspector P. R. Meyer yesterday that he has been out of custody only one year since he was 12 years old, is back in jail again. He was arrested by Meyer and city detectives when he attempted to cash a forged Postoffice money order for $28.50 at a credit clothing store at 606 North Broadway. Swessa, according to Meyer, admitted forging the money order and confessed stealing $50 in cash and stamps and 21 money order blanks from the Lodi (Mo.) Postoffice last Friday. The offense is punishable by a maximum of five years in prison or a fine of $5000 or both.

VENUE CHANGE LIKELY IN SCORFINA CASE

Belleville Judge Indicates He Will Grant Request if Made by Defendants.

Three Sicilian gangsters in jail at Belleville under indictment in the Scorfini kidnapping case will receive a change of venue from Circuit Judge Miller's court there if they apply for it. Judge Miller indicated today, in a hearing on a plea that they be tried by another judge.

The prisoners affected by Judge Miller's announcement are Baptista Bonmarito, Mike Lombardo and Sora Mantia. The case of Frank Agrusa and Vito Impastato, also prisoners on a kidnapping charge, will be considered by the grand jury Thursday.

A recent amendment to the Illinois statutes makes a change of venue mandatory on the Court where defendants make affidavit of their belief that they cannot receive a fair trial by the judge in whose court their indictments are pending. Judge Miller said.

His announcement was made following testimony of J. B. Margolis, East St. Louis commission merchant, who, with I. A. Prywitt, had made affidavit that the gangsters could not get a fair trial before Judge Miller because the Court was prejudiced against them. Margolis testified, as did Prywitt yesterday, that he signed the affidavit at the request of Ben Megoff, Granite City, a friend of 20 years. He declared he regarded it simply as a formality and admitted he knew nothing to indicate Judge Miller was prejudiced.

"Your action in making this affidavit would be reviewed by the grand jury had not the statute on change of venue been amended recently," Judge Miller told Margolis. "Formerly two citizens could make such an affidavit as you have, but their statement required the backing of testimony bearing out its truth."

"Under the new law, however, defendants, or a defendant and his lawyer, may allege prejudice and their fear they cannot have a fair trial in a given court. It is then mandatory on the court to disqualify."

TO SURVEY PROPERTY OF HAMILTON-BROWN

Receiver Wants Experts to Determine if Shoe Firm Can Continue Business.

A New York firm of business engineers will survey the business and properties of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co., to advise William R. Gentry, receiver, whether the company shall remain in business or be liquidated.

The receiver, appointed May 24, said yesterday that he hoped the company could be preserved as a going concern. "But others interested in the company, and familiar with its affairs for a longer time, believe otherwise," he said, and this led him to apply to Federal Judge Davis for permission to engage the services of experts. Miller, Franklin &amp; Co. will do the work, for which the receiver is authorized to pay not more than $18,000.

If the experts recommend continuance of the business, it is expected that they will show in what direction attempts at extension should be made, and where there should be curtailment. The company, since the receivership, has sold some of its Eastern warehouse properties.

The receivership decree was issued on petition of a Chicago bank, which was a creditor, after counsel for the shoe company and for the heirs of A. D. Brown, founder of the company, had agreed on such action. The company, once the largest in St. Louis, had a capital stock issue of $5,000,000, and the receivership petition estimated the assets as $1,000,000. The latest market quotation on the stock was $4 on shares of $25 par value.

St. Louis Salesman Dies. PADUCAH, Ky., Sept. 9.—John C. Gotke, 47 years old, 4311 Lindell boulevard, St. Louis, died of heart disease here yesterday. He was a traveling representative of the Celotex Co. He is survived by his widow, Mary. Interment will be in Clinton, Ia.

If such action is taken in this case I shall feel forced to disqualify myself and order its removal to another court."

SPECTATOR KILLED BY SWORD THROWN OFF BY FIGHTING BULL

Animal, by Thrust, Hurts Weapon
Over Fence at Madrid; Matador Held.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, Sept. 9.—A spectator and a bull were killed by the same sword at a bull fight yesterday. After the matador stabbed the bull, the animal made a thrust with its horns and hurled the sword over a wall. The falling weapon struck a man who had been watching the sport. Manolo Martinez, the matador, was arrested by order of the provincial Governor, who ordered an immediate trial.

By the Associated Press.
BARCELONA, Sept. 9.—Fausto Barajas, a bull fighter, was gored while in the ring yesterday and suffered serious injury. A bull lifted the matador with its horns, injuring him in the chest with one horn and in a thigh with the other.

KEEP THAT YOUTHFUL FRESHNESS

How surely it depends upon how you feel, the way you look—and upon healthy teeth and gums! But what is the best way to care for teeth and gums? You see so many conflicting theories, you notice so many different dentifrices. ★ ★ E. R. Squibb & Sons asked a famous research institution to get 50,000 American dentists to give their opinions. Read the summary of the replies received:

Surely this is convincing evidence that Squibb Dental Cream will protect your teeth and gums. For it is made with more than 50% Squibb Milk of Magnesia. ★ ★ Squibb's contains no grit, no astringents, nothing which might injure. Get a tube and use it regularly. See the results. Your teeth gleam. Your mouth feels refreshed, so clean. And your smile simply sparkles!

LOUISIANA TROOPS ORDERED OUT ON EVE OF PRIMARY

Just 'Overnight Drill,' Says Gov. Long Who Is Opposing Senator Ransdell for Renomination.

By the Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9.—Louisiana voters were involved today in perhaps the bitterest battle of ballots the state has seen since reconstruction days—the Democratic senatorial contest between Gov. Huey P. Long and Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, who has spent 31 of his 72 years in Congress. A battery of state militia was ordered out last night on what was called "overnight drill." For some time it has been freely predicted that the National Guardsmen might be called upon for election day duty; but the Adjutant-General denied that the guardsmen had been "mobilized," saying the drill was not unusual.

Long has termed his $67,000,000 road program, defeated in the State Legislature, an outstanding issue and has asserted that Ransdell has accomplished little in his long congressional service. The Senator has pointed his record on waterways, flood control and public health legislation.

Opposition workers charged that Samuel Irby, former State highway employee, and James Terrell, divorced husband of the Governor's private secretary, taken by state officers from a Shreveport hotel last Thursday and missing since, were being secreted by Gov. Long. Irby had announced his intention of suing Long for slander. Gov. Long and others were summoned into Federal Court on a writ of habeas corpus to surrender Irby and Terrell, but Assistant Attorney-General Schowalter, who has been pressing the search, obtained little information as to their whereabouts.

Yesterday Gov. Long added State troops to his bodyguard. He and a newspaper reporter, whom he called a name, exchanged blows, but later apologized to each other. Gov. Long missed his train for his home in Shreveport last night and will be unable to vote in today's primary.

Record Off-Year Vote Indicated in Michigan.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 9.—A record vote for an off-year was indicated for today's primaries on the basis of early reports from over the State, due to a spirited three-cornered contest for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, a campaign against U. S. Senator James Couzens and a bitter mayoralty fight in Detroit. Fair weather prevailed except in portions of the upper Peninsula.

The Detroit News estimated at noon that 125,000 votes had been cast in Detroit where four candidates have actively sought the office of Mayor since Mayor Charles Bowles was recalled July 22. Forecasts of the total vote in the city ranged upwards from 235,000. The previous record is 330,000. The primary vote was reported heavy over all of the State.

Chase S. Osborn, former Governor, and Senator Couzens' opponent, has made his campaign on a platform of "party regularity," attacking Couzens' alignment with independents in the State.

The Governorship candidates are Attorney-General Wilbur M. Bricker, former Gov. Alex J. Groesbeck, and Judge Edward J. Jeffries.

Active candidates for Mayor of Detroit besides Mayor Bowles, who automatically became a candidate with his recall, are George Engel, former Judge Frank Murphy and former Mayor John W. Smith. Phillip Raymond is running on a Communist ticket.

Excessive Expenditure Charged in Colorado Campaign.

By the Associated Press. DENVER, Col., Sept. 9.—A stormy campaign enlivened by charges of excessive expenditures was brought to an end by Colorado's primary elections today.

Two Republicans and three Democrats sought nomination for the United States Senate seat to be vacated by the retirement of Senator L. C. Phipps.

The bitter struggle in the Republican ranks held the chief interest in today's elections. The candidacy of William V. Hodges, former treasurer of the Republican National Committee, was supported by Senator Phipps. Hodges was opposed by George H. Shaw, former State chairman, who had the support of Senator Charles A. Waterman, Clarence C. Hamlin, National Committeeman and John R. Coen, State chairman.

Edward P. Costigan, who as a Republican served on the Federal Tariff Commission under appointment of President Wilson; James A. Marsh, former city attorney of Denver, and Morrison Shafroth, son of a former Senator and Governor, were the Democratic senatorial aspirants.

The Senate campaign committee has announced its intention of investigating the charges of excessive expenditures after the primaries.

The Colorado anti-Saloon League endorsed all Senatorial candidates except Shaw.

Colorado's four Congressmen sought renomination without primary contests.

Sale of New Coats

Both Medium and Heavy Weights for Street and Campus Wear Many Have Matching BERETS

$25

Wednesday Coat Headquarters features a sale of Coats which everyone needs... especially for the many days when it is not quite cold enough for a Fur Coat, but cold enough to need a smart, warm Coat. Tweeds, mixtures and solid colors, in a wide range of colors and every one a recently produced fashion, at less than its intended price. Some have fur trims.

Misses' and Women's Sizes

Magnificently Furred $38.84
Winter Coats at . . . .

Another extraordinary purchase! Coats in the advance fashions, with this season's huge collars in nearly a dozen varieties of costly furs. Misses', women's and plenty of larger women's sizes.

Three-Piece Knitted Suits Are the Rage!

THEY'VE just come in... these clever Knit Suits in the Little Sports Shop and from the looks of them... the quality of them... the fit of them... $16.75 is MUCH too little a price for them! But then you know, the Little Sports Shop is making Fashion and Value History in St. Louis.

$16.75

Notice the clever tucked jacket to this suit. And the bib blouse is striped, has short sleeves. Navy, brown, green, wine.

There's a little dot woven in this knit... in a lighter shade. And the jersey blouse is beautifully embroidered. Rust, green, wine.

You can wear this jacket with tuxedo effect... it's lined that way. The pebbly knit blouse matches the lighter fleck in the suit. Rust, green, wine.

Sizes 12 to 40

Other Knit Suits $10.75 to $69.50

Working Together

For high quality and low prices

Between its customers and A&P there is a partnership which works to the advantage of both sides. The customers represent demand on the largest scale. A&P represents supply on an equally large scale.

Customers know they can get at A&P stores whatever they want, the best at lowest prices. A&P, knowing its customers' wants from their daily orders, is never in doubt. It stocks no goods that stay on its shelves unsold. Thereby it avoids losses that would have to be made good in prices.

And because A&P is thus the definitely instructed buying agent of millions of people, it is able to use their united buying power wherever their best interest dictates.

Each customer gets the benefit of every saving, of every wise selection of goods. A&P, relying on many small profits,* gains from increasing numbers of customers. They are attracted by the best service at the lowest cost. If there is a surer way of keeping the cost of food down and the quality of food up, no one has told about it.

* 2½ cents on the dollar's worth of goods sold.

DEPUTY KILLS COMPANION OF LYNCHING VICTIM

Georgia Negro Had Been Sought After Policeman Was Slain and Three Hurt in Encounter.

By the Associated Press.

DARIEN, Ga., Sept. 9.—"A Negro who, officials said was Frank Bryan, thought to have been one of two men who shot and killed Chief R. L. Freeman of the Glynn County police, and wounded three other men here early Wednesday, died today of wounds suffered when he was captured in a swamp by Deputy Sheriffs.

George Grant, the other Negro believed implicated in the shooting of Chief Freeman, was lynched in his cell in the jail yesterday, noon after he had been captured. He was shot to death.

Deputy Sheriff Malone told Crumley that he and his two companions early this morning approached a Negro house, and that Bryan ran out, fired two pistol shots at them and fled. Malone said he fired once at the fleeing Negro with his shotgun, and that the Negro dropped. They said they found a pistol said to have been missed by the Darien bank several weeks ago after a robbery, near his side.

A coroner's jury, which viewed the body of Grant, returned a verdict that death was due to gunshot wounds at the hands of persons unknown to the jury. Sheriff A. S. Poppell said that while he was lured away from his office by a ruse the county jail was stormed and the Negro slain.

INQUEST VERDICT IN SHOOTING NAMES CORPORAL AS SLAYER

J. M. Hill Accused of Killing Sergt. Fitzpatrick in Scuffle at Home Brew Party.

Corporal James M. Hill of the Sixth Tank Company stationed at Jefferson Barracks was named today in a coroner's verdict as the slayer of his First Sergeant, William M. Fitzpatrick. In a brawl Sunday afternoon at the home of Sergt. Albert Francis on the edge of the military reservation.

Witnesses testified that Hill and other soldiers of the tank company were members of a home brew party at Francis' home during the afternoon. Fitzpatrick, who had also been drinking, visited the home during the afternoon and while there attempted to disarm Hill, who was brandishing a pistol. It was stated. In the scuffle Fitzpatrick was shot in the abdomen and Hill fled.

PAIR IN AUTO HELD UP BY NEGRO IN FOREST PARK

Glenn B. Thompson, Paxton, Ill., Robbed of $1.50 and His Machine.

Glenn B. Thompson of Paxton, Ill., and a woman companion were held up last night near Clayton and Concourse drives, in Forest Park, by a Negro, who opened the door of Thompson's parked automobile, and threatened him with a revolver. The Negro compelled the pair to alight, took $1.50 from Thompson and drove away in the automobile.

Roland L. Pollmann, an insurance agent of 2208A Shenandoah avenue, told police he was held up last night in front of 1819 Geyer avenue by three men, who took $135 in cash and his automobile. The machine was found later in an alley behind 3100 Shenandoah avenue.

NEW ORLEANS-ST. LOUIS BOAT RECORD ATTEMPT ABANDONED

St. Louisans Give Up Becau of a Broken Crankshaft Near Cape Girardeau, Mo.

The attempt of Charles Schok-miller and Harvey Burdett of St. Louis to set a new record for water travel between New Orleans and St. Louis was abandoned today, due to a broken crankshaft of their outboard motorboat, Baby Lee II.

The Baby Lee II left New Orleans at 6 a. m. Saturday in a race to break the record of 78 hours, 40 minutes, set last month by C. N. Mickler of New Orleans. Schok-miller and Burdett would have had to arrive before 1 p. m. today to set a new record. At that time they were reported at Thebes, Ill., having turned back early today when within five miles of Cape Girardeau.

THREE BOYS ADMIT BREAKING WINDOWS WITH SLINGSHOTS

Following the breaking of several plate glass and residence windows on North Grand boulevard yesterday afternoon, police arrested three boys, 12, 13 and 14 years old, who admitted breaking the panes with sling-shots.

Windows broken included a $225 plate glass at the Igou Motor Co., 2923 North Grand; a window at 2823 North Grand; a plate glass window at the St. Cyr Tire Co., 2816 North Grand; two windows in a grocery store at 2900 North Grand; several windows in a vacant building at 2834 North Grand. Finding of small shot inside the buildings provided a clue to the vandals.

Parents of the boys are negotiating to pay for the damage.

The NEW
YUKON
MODEL

$184.50
Installed In Your Home

At last the great ambition of the entire electric refrigeration industry has been realized!

Kelvinator has produced an electric refrigerator of self-evident quality, of ample food and ice cube capacity, of really striking beauty and traditional Kelvinator reliability—at a price that is destined to make refrigeration history.

It is fitting that Kelvinator—the pioneer—should take this great step which finally breaks down the price barrier, enabling tens of thousands of families of moderate income to enjoy, to the fullest, the many recognized advantages of modern electric refrigeration.

The Kelvinator name, the oldest and greatest in electric refrigeration, gives the assurance of quality, value and dependableness that makes the price of $184.50 so truly revolutionary.

Never before has it been possible for all home owners to obtain quality electric refrigeration at the price they have wanted to pay. Take a few minutes to inspect the Yukon and satisfy yourself that the refrigerator you have always desired is really here.

55 TO 1 SHOT WINS SECOND AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Weidelen, a 55-1 shot, won the second race at Lincoln Fields this afternoon from J. J. Coughlin's Very Well with Happy Holiday, another outsider, third. The race was for 2-year-old maidens (fillies). Weidelen ran the distance in 1:14.

Weidelen, racing close up most of the way, moved fast in the final strides and won in the final strides. Very Well had speed from the start, but tired slightly in the last 60 yards. Happy Holiday, racing forwardly to the stretch, held on well to the finish.

Miss Roseade racing in the silks of Lewis and Kemp won the first race from A. A. Barone's Nifty, with Charm, from the stable of C. S.
Stubbs, third. The winner was ridden by E. James and ran the six furlongs in 1:12 3/4 and paid $3.74 for a $1 stake.

Miss Roseade followed Nifty in the early stages, caught her in the stretch and won easily. Nifty went to the front at the start, but tired in the stretch and held the others safe.
Charm stumbled at the start and closed fast in the last 70 yards.

Lady Fingers won her third straight victory in the third race from the odds-on favorite Willa, with Pious coming in for the third and end of the purse. She ran the distance in the good time of 1:12, and paid $9.28 for $2. The winner was ridden by G. Depeze.

Lady Fingers showed her usual early speed, ran into a long lead and was eased up. Willa broke badly, was in trouble in the stretch and closed fast when clear. Pious outstayed in the early stages, closed fast in the stretch.

NORRIS WILLIAMS WINS TO REACH FOURTH ROUND

By the Associated Press.
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9.—
Thirty-two survivors of an original field of 95 engaged in play beneath a benevolent sun this afternoon in the third round of the national tennis singles championship.

About 500 spectators were on hand when Frank Shields, brilliant young New Yorker, met Elmer Griffin, a former San Francisco player now living in New York, in the opening stadium match.

Shields won from Griffin without difficulty, 6-4, 6-4, 7-6.
Richard N. Williams, the champion of 14 years ago, who defeated George Lott in a big upset yesterday, followed Shields into the fourth round with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 victory over Harold Blauer of
New York.

Outclassing his opponent in the final sets, Sidney Wood, 18-year-old New York sensation, defeated Wilbur Coen of Kansas City by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, in the third round.

Coen, Bill Tilden's foremost protege, made numerous errors, while Wood had perfect control of every shot in the bag. When he settled down to work in earnest after dropping the second set, the New York youth outplayed the eighth ranking player of the country in a decisive margin.

A gallery of 5000 applauded Wood's impressive victory, which carried him into the fourth round.

GRIMES LOSES MOUND DUEL TO MITCHELL; ALL RUNS IN SEVENTH

By J. Roy Stockton.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The Cardinals lost to the New York Giants this afternoon in the first game of the important series of four.

The score was 2 to 1.
Although defeated, the Cardinals remain in second place by one point over Brooklyn, and are still only two and one-half games out of first place, as the Robins defeated the Chicago Cubs. The first four teams now are only 22 points apart, standing as follows: Chicago, 584;
Cardinals, 566; Brooklyn, 565;
New York, 562.

TOMORROW'S RACING ENTRIES AND SELECTIONS—OTHER SPORT NEWS

MAPLEWOOD HAS VETERAN TEAM FOR NEW SEASON

Coch Wahbrink of Maplewood views his football squad with pride this year, for it is composed largely of veterans, with a sprinkling of good new men. Twelve of his squad of more than 50 are letter men from last year, most of them being regulars. Wahbrink's team last year was very small but now the players of that team have grown and this year's squad is much heavier. The majority are juniors, so that Coach Wahbrink may expect to have a good many of them return next year.

Wahbrink's complete backfield will be back, and in addition there are several members of last season's squad who will be fighting the regulars for their berths. George Blumer at fullback, Francis Blithner at right half and Joe Rhine at left, seem to have their positions clinched, but Earl Crain, regular quarterback of last year, is going to be hard pressed to keep his job from Russell Miller and Carl Rice, members of the squad last year.

In the line, Maplewood is as well supplied with veteran material as in the backfield. John "Ace" Brookman will again be at left end, supported by Boris Bagranoff at tackle and George Klippenberger at guard. George Hoffman may be at the pivot position with Basil Crain at right guard and Lindell Farris at right tackle. Right end is the only position at which there is not a veteran available, but for this job there are several who have seen service. Herman Geske, ineligible last year, will be the favored candidate for that place but will have competition from Eddie Springgate, who has seen service on the second team. Another letterman, Conrad Byland, will be available for duty at guard or tackle in case any of the others do not come up to expectations.

Coch Wahbrink will again be assisted by Dr. Davis, who will take care of the training of the boys.

Maplewood's uniforms this year will be worthy of notice, as they are to be aviation silk. Pants, jerseys and stockings will be of a vivid blue in solid colors, with a blue and white helmet. Another team is to have the same type of uniforms in bright orange, this team being Webster, to be met on Nov. 15, at which time Maplewood will dedicate its new field.

Maplewood is playing a schedule of eight games, six of which are County League games. As the outside schools to be met are strong teams, being De Soto and Webster, it can readily be seen that Coach Wahbrink will have full need of his veterans to come through this season successfully. The schedule follows:

Sept. 20, Maplewood at De Soto.
Oct. 3, Maplewood at Webster.
Oct. 11, Maplewood at Kirkwood.
Oct. 17, Maplewood at Maplewood.
Oct. 24, Maplewood at Kirkwood.
Nov. 7, St. Charles vs. Maplewood.
Nov. 15, Webster at Maplewood.
Indicates league game.

Scout-Pro to Get Trial.
Shortstop George Wise and outfielder Neal Mazza, who hail from the Tacoma team of the Independent Timber League which flourishes in Washington, are to receive a trial with the Portland Beavers.

RACING Column

Some Odds.
BOY oh boy, how those Cardinals have changed! When Thomas Kearney, the country's best known sports price-maker, announced his first odds against the National League flag race contenders the Cardinals were quoted at 12 to 1. The Cubs were even money.

Today the same authority estimates the Cardinals' chances of a pennant victory at 3 to 2. But the amazing announcement Kearney made was that the Cubs are now 1 to 2 to win the pennant! "It's a short price," Kearney said, "but the schedule is all against the Cardinals. They meet the Pirates in four games at the very close of the season and that is no nice outlook. At the same time the Cubs will be playing Cincinnati at Chicago."

Kearney added that on this year's form the Cubs had shown weakly away from home, while the Cubs had run wild. All this, with the two and one-half games lead held by the Cubs this morning, justified the odds on price to Kearney.

But with local fans—what are two and one-half games? A little bad luck by the Cubs in the series with the Robins, a clean sweep by the Cards at New York—and there you are. The race might be even. Anything seems possible to a team that has just won 16 of its last 18 games.

Not Bet Crazy.

MORE than 40,000 persons paid about $250,000 to see the first international polo game between the United States and English teams.

To some that will prove that sport for sport's sake is still a slogan with a punch. But polo is a truly sporting proposition, since no money or capital is to be made out of individual success on the polo field.

The fact that the public at large attended the recent game in such numbers, and will pay $500,000 to see the entire series, is also a sign that it is not necessary to have a betting angle to a contest to interest the public.

Baseball and college football, with polo, have little or no professional betting connected with them. Fighting is different and one of the chief menaces to this sport is the fact that every important contest is accompanied by heavy wagering.

The popularity of dog and horse racing and their remarkable spread indicated to some that sport without betting might some day be a thing of the past. But the major sport spectacles of the people today are those which have no speculative angle—a healthy sign.

It Has Been Done.

YOU never can tell—the rich race in a world, the 1930 Futurity at Belmont next Saturday, may be won by one of the "weaker sex." Fillies have played only occasional parts in winning great racing events, and in the Futurity; but this year looks like another big inning for the girls, in spite of the fact that the Big Four must shoulder 130 pounds each.

Only one filly of the current season has done anything—Risque, winner of the Spinaway Stakes. As fortune has arranged it, this filly is owned by Mrs. John G. Hertz, whose filly Anita Peabody won the Futurity of 1927. That victory was on sufferance, as Risky Count apparently was able to win if extended.

Other fillies, however, have shown that the alleged weaker sex is quite capable of being more deadly than the male. Mother Goose won the event in 1924 and almost equalled the track record in doing it.

In the Futurity of 1904 it was a filly that marred the unsullied record of the great Synbow with its only defeat, Artful. Synbow was one of the truly great horses of the American turf. At the start of his 3-year-old career Race King ran him to a dead heat. It was a filly, however, that handed him his only downright trimming.

Perhaps the real reason why colts figure more prominently than fillies in turf events is that fewer of the fillies go to the races and they are not so readily conditioned as colts. Another feature is that hard campaigning of fillies is said to impair them for the breeding purposes.

A Very Good Reason.

DESPITE the high pressure ballyhoo employed by the Madison Square Garden officials to arouse the New York public to the merits of the Singer-McLarnin bill, it is hinted that the advance sale has been a huge disappointment to the promoters.

They might have expected this. Instead of matching Singer against Berg, Chocolate, but or some other capable lightweight title candidate, the bout arranged is between a welterweight title holder and the lightweight champion.

This, therefore, is just another fight, and leads nowhere. There is some magnetism about McLarnin; but nothing Singer has done as yet stamps him as great. With no title at stake there is no reason for the crowd to become enthused.

The public knows perfectly well that if Singer loses it will be said that he "made a mistake in coming out of his class," and that if McLarnin wins it will be just pushing over a smaller and lighter opponent.

All the protestations of Singer about his willingness to fight Berg or Chocolate seem to have been remembered by the fans who are not ready to accept a non-title substitute.

Not that the fight will be uninteresting. As boxing events should be a humdinger, with Singer the boxer trying to keep off the hard-hitting and aggressive McLarnin. That combination always makes a good show to those who like boxing for its skill.

Unfortunately the public has been educated to slugging spectacles and not displays of craft, generalship and defensive excellence.

Daylight Wins One Bout.

WHILE night sport exhibitions are sweeping this country, in old England the march of the nocturnal is meeting with some opposition. The London Soccer League, governing body, has just announced that night football will not be tolerated among its members. All games will be played in daylight.

From the manner in which London "went to the dog" in the matter of night greyhound racing, it appeared that other dark sports might also prosper. London, be it known, sometimes operates as high as six dog tracks on the same evening.

But then, you don't have to watch a dog race—just bet on it. Night or day, a dog race without betting wouldn't draw a long breath.

BEAUMONT HIGH GRID PROSPECTS ARE EXCELLENT

Football prospects are especially bright at Beaumont High School. With eight returning lettermen and much heavy new material, Coach Franklin has the best looking squad in years with which to point to a possible first grid title for the North Side school.

Franklin also has the assistance of a strong coaching staff. Athletic Director R. C. Lewis has been on the field assisting with both line and backfield while Mike Walker, formerly at Washington University and Central High, has also been working with the newcomers.

The squad has been working for a week and is gradually taking form. Four veterans of the backfield are returning but the quarter position is Coach Franklin's chief worry.

Herb Bohringer worked at a half back position and is seriously considered for the signal-calling post this season. However, Wells and Fuller, newcomers, may work into the position. If so, Bohringer will take over a half while Tom Wright, Bob Kallits and John Kyler fight for the other back positions.

It is not certain that Ed Gahard will be seen again in the full back position and his loss will handicap the scoring section of the North Siders.

In the line the tackles seem certain with Ralph and Lloyd Simpson back. Carlin and Corda have been giving the veterans competition for the places, although Corda may be used as an end. He is a fast freshman and has displayed real passing ability in the early workouts.

The ends will be open material, although Taylor and Margherio worked there last year as second stringers. Margherio is a likely looking center and may be tried there, also.

Harry Bach and Reinhardt Shultz will probably clinch the guard places, although four new boys, Ray, Dralle, Yawitz and Sewing have been showing up well there. Ray may be shifted, however, to a tackle or center.

The center position also is open and Margherio, Ray and Bach are under consideration for that place. Meyer also is working out there and the new lad may fill the middle position.

Both Lewis and Franklin are well pleased with the prospects of that team. "My material is good, heavy and hard working. The boys are working hard and I think our chances for the championship were never brighter. This morale stuff about never winning a title doesn't mean a thing," Franklin said yesterday.

The schedule for Beaumont follows:
Sept. 20—Kirkwood at Beaumont.
Sept. 27—Open.
Oct. 4—Beaumont at St. Louis U. High.

30 MEMBERS OF BILLIKENS OUT FOR FIRST WORK

The St. Louis University football squad to Charles "Chill" Walsh, head Billiken coach, yesterday afternoon for preliminary training, before the season opens. Walsh will run his charges through conditioning exercises twice daily until the commencement of school. The practice field east of the Walsh Stadium is the scene of activities.

The presence of Charles McKinney brought cheer into the hearts of the Billiken adherents, because McKinney gained about 30 pounds during the vacation, none of which was superfluous weight. Charley was troubled last year by illness, but his pre-season condition makes it likely that he will become one of the best quarterbacks ever seen in a Billiken team.

Walsh gave out uniforms and issued a series of setting up and running exercises which are calculated to improve the wind of the players. The light conditioning will last about a week, when it is hoped that the squad will be equipped by late arrivals and serious work will get under way.

St. Louis plays its first game on Friday night, Sept. 14, meeting Cornell College of Iowa, here at the stadium, which is nearly completed.

In St. Louis, when Boatmen's was young, the street-car driver, wrapping the lines around the brake-handle, would step back into the car to collect fares—while the horses jogged along, unguided, at their usual even gait. Or perhaps the driver stayed at his post, simply jingling the bell to call the passengers' attention to the slot-track running along the car wall. Into this each one was supposed to drop his nickel, which then rolled down the slide to the cash-box at the front. This leisurely transportation was in tune with the times.

THE HORSE-CAR was a real convenience in its day, even though it ran infrequently and without speed. A smaller proportion of the citizens then owned horses and buggies than now own automobiles, and the usual alternative was to ride the horse-car—or walk.

Now there are many modes of transportation, forming a great network over the city and suburbs—electric cars, busses, service cars, or your own car in many cases. Vehicles are available everywhere to "get you there quickly"—the compelling travel motive of today.

Paralleling this progress in municipal transportation is the growth of Boatmen's. In 1847—a little banking room, suited to the requirements of a community of 55,000 souls.

In 1930—a large, progressive and thoroughly modern financial institution, offering every facility in banking, investments and trusts—and fully capable of serving the varied business and personal financial requirements of our complex civilization.

In one particular, however, this institution has not changed. It still maintains the close personal relationship with its customers which has been a cardinal principle with Boatmen's for 83 years.

It is on this friendly basis that Boatmen's will welcome you as a customer—in any or all of its many departments.

Wm. K. Smith President.

MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL.
The trouble is you've got it too dry in New York. The people up there on these hot days have their tongues hanging out of their parched throats and a beer won't hurt them. "You're doing a fine job—the best that ever was done in New York—but we must remember that this is a presidential election year. We must not do anything to antagonize the voters, and they are complaining in New York that they can't get beer."

The speaker was Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and the remarks were addressed to me. The date was August 1, 1928, and the place was the office of the Assistant Secretary in Washington. Beside me sat Alf Ottdal, acting commissioner of prohibition.

"You must take your men out of the breweries," the Assistant Secretary ordered.

"I don't want to do that," I said, because I know I have the breweries stopped now for the first time. I want to keep my men in the breweries until Sept. 15, when the beer season will be about over."

Ordered Out Right Away.

"That won't do," the Assistant Secretary argued. "Sept. 15 won't give the breweries sufficient time to get started before election. The politicians up there are complaining that New York is much too dry, especially in beer, and I want the men taken out right away." You can guess that I looked at the Assistant Secretary in astonishment. I had learned to expect anything in prohibition enforcement by this time, but this was the limit. "Well," I said, "I suppose I'll have to obey any order I get in writing."

"I think you'll get the order," he shot back at me.

And, sure enough, three days later I received a letter signed by Mr. Ottdal and approved by Mr. Lowman ordering me to take my men out of the breweries.

The brewery situation in New York has always been a difficult problem. Before prohibition these plants were called breweries, but since prohibition they are referred to as manufacturers of cereal beverages. However, they are still properly breweries.

Operate Under Permits.

Under prohibition these plants are given a permit to manufacture cereal beverages with an alcohol content of less than one-half of 1 per cent, and there are two methods of manufacture. One is the arrested process in which the product never reaches an alcohol content higher than the legal limit. However, there is no cereal beverage manufacturer using this process in the New York district.

The other process, and the one I have generally throughout the States, permits fermentation exactly as before prohibition. In this the alcoholic content reaches 6 or 8 per cent and then it is supposed to be dealcoholized until the content is reduced to the legal limit.

This latter process affords the cereal beverage manufacturer an opportunity to cheat an excellent opportunity to dispose of real beer without the knowledge of the Government, because he is permitted to ferment great quantities of high powered beer on hand awaiting dealcoholization.

Of course there are legitimate cereal beverage manufacturers, but a great majority of such plants are operating at a loss and are simply holding on in the hope that one day beer of a high alcohol content will be legalized.

Constant Vigil Necessary.

Because of the possibility of "shootings" real beer from these breweries after business hours it has been necessary for Government agents to watch and inspect the cereal beverage plants almost continually. Besides periodic inspections in cases where the Government has reason to believe that a plant is putting out real beer, it is usual to assign undercover agents to watch outside the premises for continuous 24-hour periods.

However, this is not easy. It is quite the custom for a cheating brewery to subsidize an entire neighborhood, and it is consequently sometimes difficult or impossible to get a Government agent within two or three blocks

"Take Your Men Out of the Breweries," Was the Order From Washington to New York

Election Day Was Approaching, the Boys Were Thirsty and a High-Up Official in the Capital Thought a Little Beer Wouldn't Hurt Them.

ARTICLE II.

MAJ. MAURICE CAMPBELL, prohibition administrator in New York, said today that the order to take men out of the breweries was a direct result of the approaching election.

"You're doing a fine job—the best that ever was done in New York—but we must remember that this is a presidential election year. We must not do anything to antagonize the voters, and they are complaining in New York that they can't get beer."

The speaker was Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the treasury, and the remarks were addressed to me. The date was August 11th and the place was the office of the assistant secretary in Washington. Beside me sat Alf Otfield, acting commissioner of prohibition.

"You must take your men out of the breweries," the assistant secretary ordered.

"I don't want to do that," I said. "Because I know I have the breweries stopped now for the first time. I want to keep my men in the breweries until Sept. 15, when the beer season will be about over."

Ordered Out Right Away.

"That won't do," the assistant secretary argued. "Sept. 15 won't do. The breweries sufficient time to start before election. The minimum up there are complaints that New York is much too dry, especially in beer, and I want the men taken out right away."

"You can guess that I looked at the assistant secretary in astonishment. I had learned to expect anything in prohibition enforcement by this time, but this was the limit."

"Well," I said, "I suppose I'll have to obey any order I get in writing."

"I think you'll get the order," he shot back at me. And sure enough, three days later I received a letter signed by Mr. Otfield and approved by Mr. Lowman ordering me to take my men out of the breweries.

The brewery situation in New York has always been a difficult problem. Before prohibition these plants were called breweries, but since prohibition they are referred to as manufacturers of cereal beverages. However, they are still, in essence, breweries.

Operate Under Permits.

Under prohibition these plants are given a permit to manufacture cereal beverages with an alcoholic content of less than one-half of 1 per cent, and there are two methods of manufacture. One is the direct process in which the product never reaches an alcoholic content higher than the legal limit. However, there is no cereal beverage manufacturer using this process in the New York district.

The other process, and the one I have generally throughout the United States, permits fermentation exactly as for prohibition. In this the alcoholic content reaches 4 or 6 per cent and then it is supposed to be dealcoholized until the content is reduced to the legal limit.

This latter process affords the cereal beverage manufacturer who desires to cheat an excellent opportunity to dispose of real beer without the knowledge of the Government, because he is permitted and must always have in process of fermentation great quantities of high-powered beer on hand awaiting dealcoholization.

Of course there are legitimate cereal beverage manufacturers, but the great majority of such plants are operating at a loss and are simply holding on in the hope that some day beer of a high alcoholic content will be legalized.

Constant Vigil Necessary.

Because of the possibility of "leaking" real beer from these breweries after business hours it is necessary for Government agents to watch and inspect these cereal beverage plants almost constantly. Besides periodic inside inspections in cases where the Government has reason to believe a plant is putting out real beer, it is usual to assign undercover agents to watch outside the premises for continuous 24-hour periods.

However, this is not easy. It is quite the custom for a cheating brewery to subsidize the entire neighborhood, and it is consequently sometimes difficult or even impossible to get a Government agent within two or three blocks of such a plant without his presence being disclosed. In New York it is quite customary for the policeman on a beat to inquire the reason for his presence in the neighborhood of any loitering stranger who might be suspected of being a Government agent, and if his answers are not satisfactory he is forthwith taken to the nearest police station, where, in order to establish his identity to prevent being locked up, he is forced to display his badge and credentials. This has been done many times to my men.

Outside Supervision Difficult.

Then, again, a cheating brewery is usually so geographically placed as to make effective outside supervision almost impossible because of adjoining garages, side streets and various exits. In order to make a case that will stick, high-power beer must be actually caught coming out of the brewery premises or be found in the rack-in room ready to be put into barrels.

For these reasons I found my supervision of breweries in 1927 ineffective, and in consequence New York that summer was flooded with real beer.

Some of this came from New Jersey, for the New York beer market is a very profitable field and the New Jersey runners have always tried to cut into it. In New York and Chicago particularly, the territory is divided by mutual agreement between beer runners into districts, and each beer-running gang in these cities is supposed to have a monopoly of the beer business in their particular district.

This allotment of beer monopolies has resulted in many murders in both New York and Chicago. I brought about when an ambitious leader of one gang attempts to transgress and supply the market allotted to another gang. Most of the murders in New York have been the result of an attempt on the part of the New Jersey runners to enter the New York market.

In June, 1928, after many days and nights of patient watching, my men were able early one morning to catch a truckload of beer coming out of the Klips Bay Brewery in First avenue, New York, and this was accomplished only after two of my agents had secreted themselves in a coal truck parked across from the brewery for 24 hours.

No Prosecution Yet.

As a consequence of this raid the equipment of this brewery declared forfeited to the Government, and as yet there has been no criminal prosecution.

With the summer of 1928 approaching, and having in mind the ineffectiveness of my brewery campaign the year previous, I decided to adopt a new procedure.

I thereupon organized a brewery police squad, my plan being to place a continuous 24-hour guard inside certain breweries.

In order to insure the honesty of my men and in order to obviate the continuous service of any one agent in the same brewery, with a possible contact between the brewery and the guard which might permit the shipment of real beer for a consideration, I continuously shifted the personnel from brewery to brewery, so that no man ever knew beforehand what brewery he would be assigned to or who his co-guard was to be.

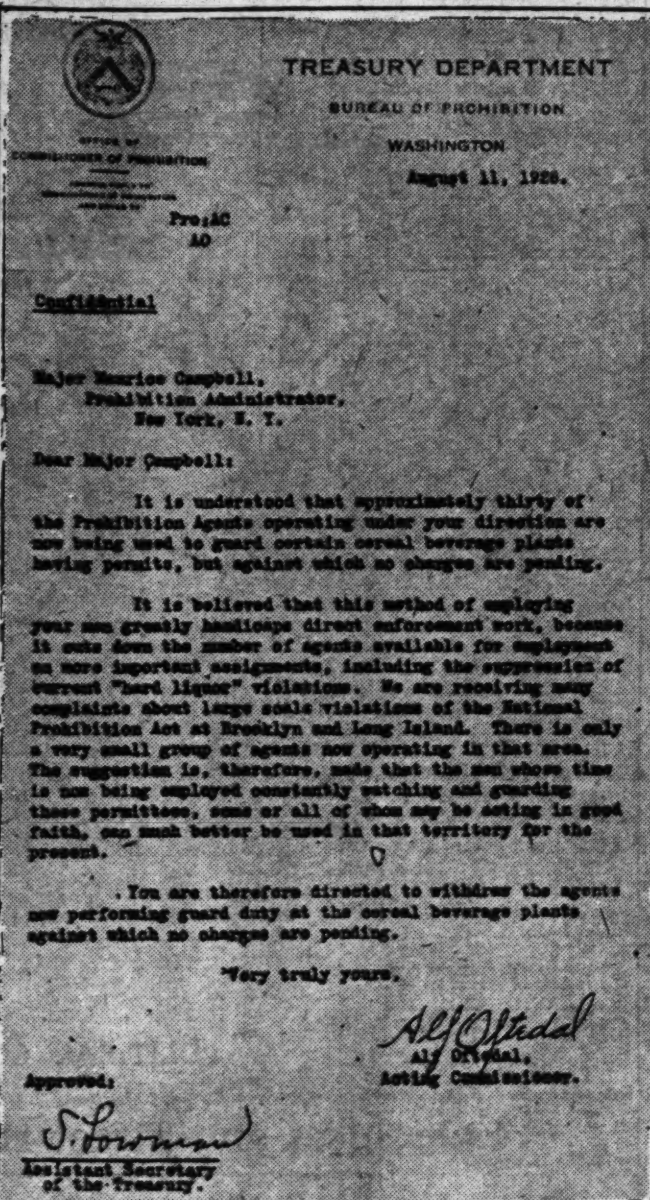

The first plant in which I installed these inside guards was the Phoenix Cereal Beverage Co. at 25th street and Tenth avenue, New York, and the results showed that my plan worked perfectly.

Soon after that I placed similar guards in the plants of the Interborough Beverage Co. in Brooklyn and the State Cereal Beverage Co. in Yonkers.

Shortage Started Murders.

I am positive that this inside supervision was effective at this time. At any rate, I know that during the summer of 1928 there was a scarcity of real beer in New York, and in order to supply the market the New Jersey beer runners attempted to cut in and in consequence several men were murdered in the streets of New York.

Official Letter Ordering Dry Agents Removed From Breweries in New York; Officer Who Approved It

summoned to Washington, and on Aug. 10 there occurred the conversation related at the opening of this story.

Dr. Doran, commissioner of prohibition, was absent in Europe at this time and Alf Otfield was acting commissioner.

On Aug. 9 there was a ring on my private telephone line and it was Mr. Otfield.

"The Governor (meaning Mr. Lowman) wants you to take all your prohibition agents out of Saratoga," he said.

I was puzzled, because Saratoga was not in my district, and I had no men there. However, I let him continue.

Put Up to Smith.

"I know there have been a lot of complaints about conditions there, but the Governor wants you to take your men out and leave the situation right up to Gov. Smith."

About that time I asked him who he thought he was talking to, and he said McCampbell. Andrew McCampbell was then prohibition administrator in the Northern New York district. I told him he had Campbell, the prohibition administrator in New York City, and Mr. Otfield said the girl had made a mistake in the call and he wanted McCampbell. Then he told me that Mr. Lowman wanted to see me in Washington the next day and I said I would be there.

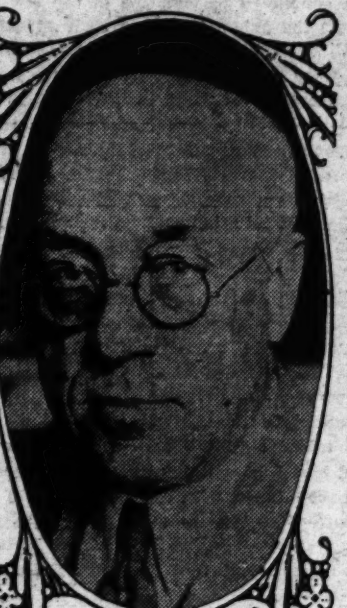

In Washington the next day Mr. Otfield and I got together early in the morning and he told me that the situation in New York was very serious and that Mr. Lowman was either going to ask me, or order me, to take my men out of the breweries.

Mr. Otfield said that Mr. Lowman questioned my right to put agents inside the breweries and I brought one of the permit blanks and showed him the clause in the permit giving me that right.

At 10 o'clock Mr. Otfield and I went to Mr. Lowman's office in the Treasury Building. Mr. Lowman was quite cordial and talked about unimportant matters for quite a while. Mr. Otfield and Mr. Lowman discussed the situation in Saratoga and Mr. Otfield informed Mr. Lowman that he had communicated with McCampbell in Buffalo and that all the agents in Saratoga had been withdrawn.

"That's fine," Mr. Lowman said. "That puts the buck right up to Gov. Smith."

Objects to Withdrawing Men.

SEYMOUR LOWMAN, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement.

lay the matter before Ogden Mills, the Under Secretary.

I didn't want to take my men out of the breweries and I didn't want a written order to that effect. So, when Mr. Lowman said, "Well, how about Sept. 17?" I decided it was better to spar for time, and finally agreed to this.

"That's fine, that's fine," chuckled Mr. Lowman, rubbing his hands together. I thought for a moment I had disposed of the matter.

During all this time Mr. Otfield had never said a word, and after we left he remarked he thought I had gotten out of a very difficult position very splendidly.

That day I had lunch with Howard Jones, now assistant director of prohibition in the Department of Justice, and told him all about what had occurred. Then I came back to New York.

Tomorrow Maj. Campbell tells of the visit of Mr. Koenig, Republican leader, and Mrs. Willebrandt's attitude when asked to "intervene."

Curtis Again Denies Influencing Issuance of Alcohol Permit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—The Philadelphia Record prints the following under a Washington dateline:

"Vice President Curtis today continued his vigorous denials that he used political influence to obtain the issuance of an alcohol permit."

"A correspondent of the Philadelphia Record called at Mr. Curtis' office this afternoon. The Vice President discussed with him the articles written by Maj. Maurice Campbell, former Prohibition Administrator for New York. Said Vice President Curtis:

"In all my dealings with Commissioner Doran and prohibition enforcement I laid only two matters before the Commissioner. One concerned the status of two dry agents in New Orleans and the other was a similar case in New York City."

"Mr. Curtis obviously meant exactly what he had said. He was."

U. S. AND BRITISH GUNBOATS REPEL REDS ON YANGTZE

American Vessel Silences Fire of Roving Band With Three-Inch Rifles and Machine Guns.

NO CASUALTIES ON EITHER WARSHIP

English Vessel Prevents the Communists From Re-entering the City of Shasi, Hupeh Province.

By the Associated Press.

HANKOW, China, Sept. 8.—Two foreign gunboats repulsed communist attacks at nearby points on the Yangtze River yesterday, inflicting heavy damage on their adversaries. Dispatches said neither of the foreign gunboats suffered casualties.

The warships involved were the American gunboat Tutuila and the British gunboat Ladybird.

A roving communist band fired on the Tutuila with machine guns and trench mortars about 80 miles above Yochow, Hunan Province. The warship answered with three-inch rifles and machine guns. The bandits were dislodged from their position along the river bank. Their mortars were destroyed. Dispatches failed to state whether any reds were killed or wounded.

The Ladybird met an attack by the communist raider Shad near the city of Shasi, Hupeh Province, with a heavy barrage from her six-inch guns. Quickly silencing the red vessel's guns, the Ladybird fired on the river banks, raking communist strongholds outside the city.

Naval dispatches said the Ladybird, in addition to inflicting heavy damage on the communist raider.

RUMORS OF REVOLT IN BRAZIL DENIED BY GOVERNMENT

Alleged Centers of Sedition Quiet, According to Official Reports at Rio de Janeiro.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 8.—The Government denied today that any reports had been received here of rumored revolt in the State of Rio Grande do Sul. Instead, officials said dispatches from alleged centers of sedition reported profound quiet.

Antonio Carlos, President of the State of Minas Geraes and the leader in the Liberal fight in the last national election, died Sunday. The Government said the authority in this populous state was turned over to Olegario Maciel, the new chief, executive in a most orderly manner.

ROY CHAPMAN ANDREWS' AID FIRED ON BY CHINESE BANDITS

Chief of Motor Transport for Gobi Desert Expedition Escapes Injury.

PEIPING, China, Sept. 8.—Roy Chapman Andrews today received word from J. McKensie Young, chief of motor transport for Andrews' expedition into the Gobi Desert, saying Young and his Chinese assistants had been fired on by bandits near Tangkian, 175 miles northwest of Kalgan. They were returning to China from Mongolia.

"We were not hit and reached camp tired but happy," Young telegraphed.

CONCILIATION IN PALESTINE

The Jews in Palestine are finding a way to agreement and understanding with the Arabs in the country, Jacob DeHaas, author and Zionist leader of New York, said last night at a meeting at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, under the auspices of the local Zionist organization.

"Political discussion on both sides is premature," DeHaas said. "I am in constant touch with men and women in Palestine, and I find they are far more deeply concerned in practical every-day problems of existence and development in Palestine than in any sensational programs."

56,000 Unemployed in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 9.—The Department of Statistical Information today announced that the census of May 15 showed only 56,000 unemployed in all Mexico. This is slightly more than one-half of one per cent of the population. Of the unemployed, 13,295 were in the Federal district around Mexico City.

BRIAND JUBILANT OVER PROGRESS OF EUROPEAN UNION

Pleased by Approval "in Principle" of His Plan Which Is Referred to League Assembly.

SOME OBJECTIONS STILL TO BE MET

Curtius Announces Germany's Intent to Continue Policy of Conciliation Toward France.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 9.—Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, was jubilant today because the Council of the League of Nations had referred his proposal for a federation of European states to the Assembly of the League, which convenes Thursday. He said he considered the quick acceptance in principle of his idea by the League Council to be a real victory for the cause of peace and economic content on this side of the Atlantic.

Those of his countrymen who are here make no attempt to minimize the dangers that the plan still must run in open discussion in which non-European states may have considerable to say, but they feel that there are no objections which cannot be overcome in a frank, open talk.

The decision of the League Council to pass the idea on to the League Assembly was hailed gladly on almost every side, with the feeling general that it gave a new lease of life to an idea which already had met with dubious responses from several of the great Powers and League adherents.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mrs. McCormick and the Senate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR Saturday resume of editorial opinion on Mrs. McCormick together with your Sunday editorial entitled, "The Senate's Authority," would be sufficient to confound the most radical McCormick partisan, were it not apparent either that you err in your premises or that you ignore or are unaware of the consequences of your conclusions.

I maintain that it is a precedent loaded with danger to the future of our institutions, for any state to concede the authority of the United States Senate to censor the electorate of any state and to say who it may or may not, and upon what terms, send to that body. It is true, there are instances where the Senate has been justified in refusing to accept the credentials of persons duly elected. One of the earliest cases is that of Flashback and Baxter, duly elected Senators from the State of Arkansas in the year 1851. Arkansas, pursuant to a re-constructed state constitution in compliance with terms laid down by the President, sent those men to the Senate, which in turn rejected their credentials on the ground that the State of Arkansas had not yet been readmitted to the Union by Congress. The reasonableness of that act was criticized at the time, but is apparent to us now, just as the reasonableness of Lincoln's suspension of the writ of habeas corpus is now apparent to us. It was the time of a great national crisis. To all practical intents and purposes the gentlemen had been elected from foreign and hostile states, and not from equal and sovereign states. Perhaps in this instance Article I, Sec. 5 of the Constitution was applicable.

But as applicable to Frank Smith, "Bill" Vane or to Mrs. McCormick, it does not, so far as the rejection of their credentials is concerned, lie. Of course the cases of Smith and Vane are closed, but the principle sought to be established as a constitutional precedent is not closed and the Senate erred in assuming so much authority. For, let us concede the integrity and patriotism of Senator Nye, Senator Morris, Senator LaFollette. Does it follow that the leaders of that body will always be men of such stamp or that their reason for urging the rejection of credentials will always have its source in such pure motives? Why, if we allow this precedent to stand, can not the Senate go further and name the successor of the Senator-elect?

Of course it is conceivable that such corrupt use of money may have been made in an election that the candidate elected would not make a good and honest public servant, and that the ends of government might best be served by his or her rejection. Have you shown, has Senator Nye shown, the corrupt use of money on the part of Mrs. McCormick? Has anyone shown the expenditure of funds coming from any source than her own private coffers? Has anyone proved her to be the agent or tool of any private interests? Can anybody say that she is not animated by patriotic motives?

LESLIE S. CROW.
East St. Louis.

Needed: Civic Leadership.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN I read Sidney R. Baer's letter and your editorial, "Wake Up, St. Louis," in Tuesday's paper, I recalled a conversation I had with the late W. J. Holbrook.

His plan for improvement primarily concerned rapid transit to and from the loop district. Specifically, a double deck speedway from Kinross to the Fourth street, first level for street cars; the second or upper level for automobiles. This would leave the street level for usual local and slower traffic.

Of course, it is easy to visualize the proposed river-front improvement, with its northwest and southwest speedways. Likewise Mr. Holbrook's proposed centrally located east-west double deck speedway. But it will never become a reality until aggressive leadership gets on the job and is backed with a liberal bond issue.

EDWIN A. KESSELMORST.

Fable.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ONCE upon a time there lived a man in the county of St. Louis, and he was a very smart man. He had been reading all about the boys who came around with pineapples, cressets, etc., and destroyed other people's property, so he had an idea.

No, my children, he did not advertise this idea over the radio, but he went right ahead with plans for remodeling his house, and he employed whomever he wished to help him. He had four nice Deputy Sheriffs, with four nice sawed-off shotguns hidden in his house. That evening at quitting time, all the workers went out to their cars and drove away under the watchful eyes of the pineapple throwers.

While the pineapple throwers were getting ready, the Deputy Sheriffs were hiding behind front windows, and when the sawed-off shotguns opened up, and filled the cressets boys full of lead.

WAKE UP, ST. LOUIS!

There was in the Post-Dispatch yesterday a letter which was like a blast of fresh air through the St. Louis tunnel. The writer wanted to know why we do not use natural gas, thus solving the smoke problem and breaking the hold which monopoly has upon the gas supply of the community.

It is a fair question, and one that should be answered. The damage that smoke is doing to St. Louis is shocking. In the exclusive private places of the West End, where residence property is most valuable, the For Sale signs are significant. It is so all over the city. The people want to move out into the County. They want to get away from the smoke. They want to get away from the dirt. They want to breathe fresh air. It is not merely their property that is damaged by the smoke. It is also their health.

The writer of the letter in yesterday's Post-Dispatch says the South and Southwest are full of natural gas which can be brought to St. Louis for general use at costs greatly under the exorbitant rates we are paying for coal gas. He thinks the city should free itself from both the smoke and the gas monopoly, and urges it to do so. He points out that the Laclede Gas Light Co., while it has a perpetual franchise, has no exclusive right. That is true. It is also true that the natural gas brought to St. Louis for industrial purposes is distributed by the same people who furnish the household with coal gas. He deduces from this that there is no hope of relief, either from the smoke or from the gas monopoly, by way of the present natural gas facility. That also is likely. Gas rates in St. Louis are high. They went up more than $600,000 a year when the local property was exploited by Charles Munroe and his associates. Is it probable that the beneficiaries of this situation are going to disturb it? We think not.

We do not know what the supply of natural gas is, but the city ought to know. If it is as abundant as this writer says it is, and if our deliverance from both smoke and monopoly can be brought about in such a way as he suggests, it is a prospect that should appeal to our instinct of self-preservation. We have little faith in the present plans for smoke prevention. They are no doubt well-meaning, and to a degree they may serve a very good purpose; but as long as we burn soft coal we will have smoke. As long as we have smoke the exodus to the County will continue. The trees will die. The curtains will blacken. The house will be filthy. The health of the people will be bad.

The city should ascertain if natural gas is the way out. Wake up, St. Louis!

TAMMANY'S BENCH SHOW.

In Tammany's latest scandal we have:
A County Judge of Brooklyn, named Vause, serving a penitentiary sentence for swindling a widow—
A General Sessions Judge, named Mancuso, forced to resign for failure of a bank of which he was the head—
Another Judge, named Vitale, who borrowed money from the gambler, Arnold Rothstein, who was shot, one might say, anonymously—
Magistrate Ewald, resigned, charged with having bought his office from a political leader—
Political leaders, Healy and Walsh, under indictment for making false tax returns.

Quite a show of yellow-ribbon courthoods, indicating that the Tammany that dines in a dinner jacket hasn't forgotten the tricks of the Tammany that washed down its free lunch with a "schmeer of suds."

MORE ABOUT THE SENATE'S AUTHORITY.

In the letter column Leslie S. Crow of East St. Louis protests against the Senate committee's investigation of Mrs. McCormick's campaign expenditures, on the ground that it is an invasion of state sovereignty and hence inimical to the preservation of our form of government.

There are many instances where the rights of the states and the powers of the Federal Government overlap, and this is one of them. We would be the last to question the right of any sovereign state to send whomever it please to the Senate. Yet that right is distinctly abridged by Article I, Section 5, of the Constitution, according to which each house of Congress has the power to be the "judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members." It is difficult to hurdle such plain language as this and we do not think Mr. Crow succeeds in doing so.

Since the Constitution gives each house of Congress this authority over its membership, the Senate is justified in gathering information upon which it can base a competent judgment. That is what it is doing in the McCormick case, and what it did in the Vane and Smith cases. How else could it exercise with intelligence or justice the provision of Article I, Section 5?

Up to the present the Nye committee is purely and simply a fact-finding body. Mrs. McCormick voluntarily appeared before it to list her campaign expenditures, by that action tacitly acknowledging the committee's jurisdiction. It has made no charges and reached no conclusions. This was what Mr. Crow asks, "Have you shown, has Senator Nye shown, the corrupt use of money on the part of Mrs. McCormick?" he is begging the question. Neither Senator Nye nor anyone else, as far as we know, has made such a charge.

The issue, simply stated, is: Pursuant to Article I, Section 5, has the Senate the right to look into the campaign expenditures of a candidate? We believe it is not only the Senate's right but its duty to do so.

EXPLODING THE FOUR MARXIAN SOCIALISM.

That the Brown-for-Congress Committee would accept the signatures of the four Marx brothers is downright disheartening. Higher ideals were to be expected in Heywood's Socialist headquarters. The Marxes may have the same last name as bushy-whiskered old Karl, but that doesn't make them Socialists. There never was a more blue-blooded aristocrat than Groucho. As the Florida hotel keeper, as the African traveler and certainly as King Louis ennobled in royal luxury, he remained aloof from the polio. His rendering of "Strange Interlude" showed he could never be a friend of the proletariat. Every aside breathed class separation. "A year ago I didn't have a cent, and now I have a cent"—what true-hearted Das Kapitalist could utter such Pollyannaish stuff! And the case against Harpo and Chico are just as bad. The way they cleaned up in that bridge game was enough. We challenge anybody to reconcile the cardinal doctrine of equal distribution and a monopoly on axes. As for Zeppo, something 1200 hours in a tree. Higher education, we suppose.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1930.

is wrong with him all right, but it isn't the influence of Liebknecht, Proudhon and Bakunin.
However, we don't mean to insinuate the four Marxes are without political interests. Quite the contrary. Our painstaking research reveals they have long been active in the affairs of their parties. Groucho is a die-hard Monarchist and has been with the Barnburners. Chico's hair makes him a Whig. Zeppo, after trying the Populists, the Bull Moosers and the Greenbackers, has just turned Free Soiler. And Harpo, of course, is a stand-pat Know Nothing.

BOTH TARED WITH THE SAME STICK.

There will be no reference to the Young brothers' failure in either the Republican or Democratic platform, according to pre-convention forecasts from Jefferson City. If the prophecy is fulfilled both parties will have miserably dodged their plain moral and political duty.

The Young brothers' so-called brokerage house operated a "racket" which amounted to $2,000,000. The enterprise was conducted in violation of the law designed to protect the public from just such swindles. The Young brothers courted and obtained important political friendship. They subscribed to the campaign fund of Secretary of State Becker, responsible for enforcing the blue-sky law, and received from him appreciative acknowledgments of their help. They employed Attorney-General Sharpe, paying him in monthly installments a retainer of $3000, for which that official admitted he performed no service. They employed State Senators of both parties, lesser politicians of both parties, and among their office documents was a letter by Chairman Howell of the Democratic State Committee certifying complimentary as to their character.

As reputable political organizations both the Republican and Democratic parties ought to denounce the Young brothers scandal. Both ought to pledge themselves to transfer of the blue sky department from a control that can manipulate it. Both parties should profess repentance, with earnest resolve to sin no more, because both parties are tared with the same stick.

Are they so morally bankrupt that they are afraid to do it?

SENATOR HAWES AND CONSERVATION.

One of the most interesting movements in the history of the United States is indicated by the decision of Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri to resign and head a movement for the conservation of wild game.

Conservation began with us in the time of Col. Roosevelt. He established forest conservation, a movement which has grown to become his principal monument. In the recent celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the forest reserve the foresters everywhere acclaimed Col. Roosevelt as the savior of America's great forest heritage. Only a man of his indomitable will could have triumphed over the greedy commercial interests which opposed him. It was a labor of Hercules to set aside so many rich forests, all of them filled with potential wealth for those who could tell them; and Col. Roosevelt performed it in the true Herculean manner. He gathered about him men like Gifford Pinchot, the first national forester. They were a hard-bitting lot of men. They had vision. They were in time, and they knew it. Result, the national forests of the United States, something that no other civilized country has ever saved for itself. It is a vast treasure, comprising in its entirety 160,000,000 acres of forests.

It is a question if the movement to conserve wild game in the United States is in time. We hope so. It was impossible to save more than a remnant of the great buffalo herds, as it is difficult to save any great part of the elk and antelope, once numerous on the Western plains. It is easier to save the deer and the small game of the nation. The migratory bird act by which migratory birds became the property of the whole people came as recently as 1913. We have a treaty with Canada by which she obligates herself to the same protection of migratory birds, and it is likely that we will soon have a similar treaty with Mexico. When Senator Hawes was a member of the lower house of Congress he joined with the Isaac Walton League in passing an act to purchase an extensive game preserve on the Upper Mississippi River. A subsequent Congress instituted the purchase with Federal money of refuges for migratory wild game. The movement which Senator Hawes will direct will supplement these prior movements. The wild game of the United States is a great asset to health and recreation. In no other country have so many people hunted and fished, as in no other country have the fish and the game remained available to all the people. Europe has always reserved her game for the pleasure of the few. The United States is reserving her game for the pleasure of the many.

Senator Hawes has a fine record in conservation. It is a great field, and the people of Missouri will wish him great usefulness in it.

WILD BILL HICKOK VISITS HIS BIRTHPLACE.

The little Illinois town of Troy Grove was about to honor its most distinguished native son. People had come from far and near. The largest crowd in its history thronged the square. On the platform by the yet unveiled $11,000 monument stood a State Senator representing the Governor, ready to make the presentation. Troy Grove's Mayor waited to accept it. Members of the State Historical Society were at hand. Slowly the covering was removed. There he stood. Wild Bill Hickok of the 27 notches, back again after these many years. Barely 18 he was when he left his father's tavern in search of adventure. The Dodge City and Abilene of those days were lively towns, but no livelier than Wild Bill. He always too ready trigger finger made him a dangerous man. To get him on their side officials appointed him Marshal and then, and there set in one of the most remarkable campaigns to exterminate evil human beings the West ever knew. Drunken soldiers shooting up the town, cattle thieves, cheaters at poker—Wild Bill had one medicine for them all. He shot first and discussed the matter afterward, a very proper procedure for the days when men were men and women were glad of it.

Wild Bill Hickok in that statue? Far from it. He may have returned to quiet Troy Grove for the ceremony, but he slipped away the first night; went back to Hayes City and Deadwood, two-fisted Dakota gun fights and the haunts of Calamity Jane. Back to the Old West, which rose, flourished and died while the hamlet of his father's tavern stood still.

An Urbana (Ill.) High School boy spent more than 1200 hours in a tree. Higher education, we suppose.

POLITICAL COURAGE IN MISSOURI.

Franchises and Street Railways

The only way by which municipalities can protect themselves from public utility promoters is to refuse to grant them franchises; Detroit blazed the way, and St. Louis may profit by its example; state commissions, in view of Supreme Court decisions, are powerless to resist companies' demands for high valuations and hence high fares.

From the Columbia Missourian

THE St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Kansas City Star are making valiant fights to save their respective cities from being further crushed by their juggernaut street railway companies which have been playing hob with these big municipalities by charging higher and higher fares. The companies justify the increase by the usual reasonable return on investment plea, the basis of valuation being the rather fantastic method of "reproduction new" laid down by the Supreme Court in the O'Fallon case.

While this decision puts municipalities at the mercy of the franchise jobbers, the same tribunal shows a way of escape from the corporations possessing the franchises as well as the holding companies, which dominate the soulless outfit. In the matter of the city of Detroit: Until a few years ago that city had its Old Man of the Sea in the shape of the corporation holding street railway franchises. The city authorities struggled long against the impossible and unbearable demands of the corporations who held the franchise, increases in fare being several times demanded, with service as bad or worse than formerly. The franchise, finally expired, and the city refused to renew it. Without relating the prolonged court procedure that ensued, the Supreme Court held that Detroit was entirely within its rights in refusing the satisfaction of the high-powered promoters with their holding companies and company a license to use its streets, and that merely running from day to day.

Thus, before the Supreme Court handed down the O'Fallon case decision, which hedges municipalities in dealing with public utilities corporations, it had already provided means to paralyze the grasping tentacles of the Newmans, the Insulls et al. All St. Louis and Kansas City have to do to rout this ilk is to elect honest Boards of Aldermen who will refuse to grant renewal of franchises to their street railway companies and take 'em in hand, always keeping a watchful eye on the Insulls and the Newmans et al and horn them away from the upright city authorities who have only the interest of their home city at heart.

There is no other chance for home control of public utilities by these two good Missouri cities. State utilities commissions in making valuations are practically bound by the United States Supreme Court theory of reproduction new, and Federal courts will sustain the findings. Furthermore, the Supreme Court's viewpoint will not be changed for many moons. Justice Brandeis is about to resign. Justice Holmes cannot be with us much longer, and the row is too hard for Justice Stone to hoe alone.

Granting a renewal of the street railway franchises by the authorities of either St. Louis or Kansas City means that not only the 10-cent fares will stand, but they'll probably be increased to 15 or 20 cents a ride when the reproduction new valuation theory gets into its stride and working to the satisfaction of the high-powered promoters with their holding companies and our decisions.

All municipalities which traffic with public utilities concerns should take notice.

That Treasure House, the Mississippi Valley

From a Survey by the Research Department, New Orleans Chamber of Commerce.

THE Mississippi Valley contains 34 per cent of the total population of the United States, 68 per cent of the rural, 53 per cent of the native, and 61 per cent of the home-owning population, 64 per cent of the land, 40 per cent of the cropped land.

Produces 74.3 per cent of the livestock—manufactures only 32.0 per cent of the leather.

Produces 69.6 per cent of all crops—manufactures only 18.6 per cent of miscellaneous food products.

Produces 52.9 per cent of the lumber—manufactures only 29.3 per cent of the pulp and paper.

Produces 91.7 per cent of the pig iron—manufactures only 22.1 per cent of the hardware, 47.5 per cent of the machine shop products, 22.1 per cent of the electrical machinery, 62.4 per cent of the engines.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.

IN HIS Britannic Majesty's embassy in Washington is an aged Negro whom E. E. Howard, until a few months ago King George's Ambassador to the United States, once described as:

"The invaluable pillar of support of the British embassy in Washington under every British Ambassador that has held the post up to the present time."

His name is Charles M. Browne, O. B. E.—for 42 years attached to the Chancery of the British embassy in the capital as a clerk, and later as a secretary.

In the words of Charlie, "It was during the reign of that most gracious King, George, Oct. 1, 1888," when he first came to the service of Great Britain's diplomatic establishment in Washington.

West then was Minister. Lord Balfour was then in service at the embassy continuously.

IN ADDITION to Lord Salisbury-West he has served the embassy while it was presided over by Lord Pauncefote, Sir Michael Herbert, Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, Viscount Bryce, Sir Cecil A. Spring Rice, Viscount Reading, Viscount Grey, Sir Auckland C. Geddes and Sir E. E. Howard.

But it was the year 1911 when Sir Auckland Geddes was Ambassador, that Charlie Browne was the greatest year of his life. It was then that His Majesty conferred on him the medal of the Order of the British Empire in recognition of his faithful service to the crown.

In the courtyard of the old embassy at Connecticut avenue, in the presence of the entire embassy staff and Charlie's family, Sir Auckland presented him with this decoration.

"I prize that honor above every other experience I have had," says Charlie, and it is easy to see that he means it.

The aged Negro likes to refer to his years of service at the British embassy as years spent in a school of diplomacy.

BOOKS, travel, contact with national and international characters—such as he has had—in addition to noting Government activities, collecting proceedings of Congress, daily releases of the various departments, and their annual reports have furnished Charlie with a "liberal education and an unusual opportunity to see the inside workings of a government."

Charlie's collection of letters from those with whom he has been associated is one of the most famous in Washington.

There is one from Sir E. E. Howard in which he is called a "pillar of support." Another from Sir Auckland refers to him as "more than a faithful and intelligent servant." Rather than he characterized as "an institution."

When he was awarded the O. B. E. letters flowed in from England and old friends. There is one to which he points with special pride. It reads:

"...You have been more talked about than the Prince of Wales himself."

THE MOUND BUILDERS. By Henry Clyde Shetrone. (D. Appleton & Co., New York City, $1.50).

HE question which the author of this distinguished work has undertaken to answer must have been asked numerous times throughout the great mound area of the United States, reaching from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic coast to the Missouri River and upper Arkansas: "Where may we find a book that will give us that knowledge of the mounds and the mysterious people who built them?" Heretofore there has been no simple answer to the question. Although the literature on the subject is said to be extensive, it has been largely in the form of popularized archaeological theories, and there has been no attempt to collect and synthesize this scattered material in a simplified and logical presentation for the average reader with no special archaeological training.

That at last has been done in the very impressive volume here presented. Henry Clyde Shetrone, the author, is director and archaeologist of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society and he has spent many years in the study of this specialty. He has undertaken, in as far as may be possible, a "reconstruction of the life of a prehistoric American race through exploration and interpretation of their earth mounds, their artifacts and their cultural remains. Naturally, the absence of contemporary written records renders impossible anything approaching a fully rounded picture of this ancient American society, but the measure of success attained here is greater than a layman would expect. In the first place, it has been possible to visualize, without resorting to fancy and in a manner that is convincing, the appearance of a typical mound builder as he must have been in life. This has been done by beginning with a typical skeleton found in Ohio, building up the body thereon in accordance with a scientific scheme of anatomical measurements and clothing it in keeping with the typical wearing apparel and ornaments discovered in various sections of the mound area.

Many habits and customs of the race have been revealed by the numerous artifacts found in the mounds, and this with a minimum of conjecture, which the author is careful to avoid. In many cases these partial revelations of social customs and even of religious practices are quite obvious. Something of the method of agriculture has been learned from their cornfields and garden patches still to be identified in certain localities by the peculiar configurations of the soil. ## RUMORS HE HAS BEEN ILL

Tells Dominican Leader He Has Been in Good Health for Sept. 10, 1930, by the Press and Publishing Co., (The New York World).

ROME, Sept. 9.—Rumors concerning the illness of Pope Pius XI, who was reported to have been ill, were definitely dispelled yesterday when, in the presence of an audience with the Master General of the Dominicans, he denied that he had been ill. "For the past eight years," he said, "during which we have occupied the seat of St. Peter, I have not had one hour's sickness. We must thank the Divine Providence for it, because, although good health is not everything, it helps us in everything."

The Pope's face showed considerable amusement during the reply by the Dominican of the current rumors, and he said:

"We ought to be very ill, or at least to have ourselves very ill, every day we get letters from all over the world about it. These kind letter-writers recommend doctors, surgeons and medicines without fail to heal us. Some even offer treatment and operations. My dear friends, you must realize that these anxious people. Neither we nor our personal physicians had any idea we suffered all the disease and pain that is attributed to us. Neither he nor we know anything about it."

VON STEUBEN CELEBRATION

The two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of Baron Frederick William von Steuben, General of the American Revolution, will be celebrated by public schools Sept. 17.

Pointing out that the anniversary furnishes an opportunity for the study of an important period in American history, Superintendent of Schools Gerling has requested that teachers tell their pupils about the life of the General. Von Steuben's voluntary services in aiding the colonists in their struggle for independence, Gerling suggests, affords an example of patriotism and loyalty to a ideal.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

Important and Fascinating

THE MOUND BUILDERS. By Henry Clyde Shetrone. (D. Appleton & Co., New York City, 1929).

THE question which the author of this truly distinguished work has undertaken to answer must have been asked numerous times throughout the great mound area of the United States, reaching from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico and from the Atlantic Ocean to the Missouri River and the upper Arkansas. "Where was the mound? What was it? What is known of the mounds? How were they made? What is the answer to the question?" Heretofore there has been no simple answer to the question. Although the literature on the subject is said to be extensive, it has been largely in the form of reports to the archaeological societies, and there has been no attempt to synthesize this scattered material in a simplified and logical presentation for the average reader with no special archaeological training.

That at last has been done in the impressive volume here presented. Henry Clyde Shetrone, the author, is director and archaeologist of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society and he has spent many years in the study of this specialty. He has undertaken, in so far as may be possible, a reconstruction of the life of a prehistoric American race through exploration and interpretation of their earth mounds, their burial mounds and their cultural remains. Naturally, the absence of contemporary written records renders impossible anything approaching a fully rounded picture of this ancient American society, but the measure of success attained here is greater than a layman would expect. In the first place, it has been possible to visualize, without referring to fancy and in a manner that is convincing, the appearance of a typical mound builder as he must have been in life. This has been done by beginning with a typical skeleton found in Ohio, building up the body thereon in accordance with a study of the measurements and clothing it in keeping with the typical wearing apparel and ornaments ascertained in various sections of the mound area.

Many habits and customs of the race have been revealed by numerous artifacts found in the mounds and this with a minimum of conjecture, which the author is careful to avoid. In many cases these partial revelations of social customs and even of religious practices are quite obvious. Something of the method of agriculture has been learned from their cornfields and garden patches still to be identified in certain localities by the peculiar configurations of the soil. Their principal articles of food are known beyond question. Small sculptures, ornaments, utensils, tools and weapons, many skillfully wrought in copper, speak fairly clearly the stage of culture they attained. There is evidence to support the belief that they had at least rudimentary knowledge of astronomy. Their experimentation in the use of architectural principles is notable, and that they were no tyros in military matters is suggested by the ground plans of certain extensive fortifications constructed by them.

As to who the Mound-Builders may have been, how related, if at all, to our present American Indians, and what became of them, the author does not speak until his factual material has been presented. In the final chapter he discusses various theories bearing on these questions and gives cogent reasons for the one to which he believes that our Indians are of the same stock as the Mound-Builders. As to what destroyed the ancient society, nothing is known.

ENFANTS TERRIBLE. By Jean Cocteau. (Brewer & Warren, New York City, 1929).

Morbid minds, accustomed to feed upon those artificial conceptions of human relations that can thrive only in urban isolation from the fundamental simplicities of life, should find this curious bit of utter wrong-headedness pleasing enough. The book has been highly praised as a story of childhood, but it may seem to many a peculiar group that is able sedulously to regard it as such, for nothing else can. The children here depicted are little less than monsters. They are a brother and sister living together in a single room in Paris. The boy is a consumptive. The girl loves him and proves her love by torturing him with a malleous tongue. The mother was a street walker and the father a dionysiac. The youngsters are uneducated, "undisciplined, untouched and isolated by circumstances from the world." The idea is that we are being given a delightful picture of "primitive" nature, but what we get, insofar as we get anything recognizable, is a disgusting exhibit from the other end of the evolutionary process in human society. We are asked to admire the author's style, and yet such wholly unjustified statements as the following are distinctly common throughout the book: "Paul (one of the children) had acted somewhat like a madman ravishing a corpse." "He brought to his descriptions the macabre, the grotesque, the repulsive." "Whereupon, like a beheaded man who might make a supreme effort to recover contact with the world, Paul parted his lips." That sort of thing suggests a neurotic's attempt to write impressively, though really having nothing to say. In the end the brother dies of hemorrhage and the sister shoots herself. Anything to wind up a nonsensical effort in an impressive manner!

GEORGE W. FUNCK, LUMBERMAN FOR 53 YEARS, DIES SUDDENLY

Vice President of the Hill-Behan Co., Succumb to Heart Attack.

George W. Funck, 70 years old, vice president of the Hill-Behan Lumber Co., died last night of heart disease at his home on Brown road near Natural Bridge road, St. Louis. He had been at his home yesterday but had returned home early, feeling ill.

Mr. Funck had been a lumberman for 53 years, having started to work at the age of 17 for a lumber company in Muscatine, Ia., his birthplace. He came here from Kansas City in 1903 as general manager of the Banner Lumber Co. In 1909 he organized the Funck Lumber Co., later the Goodfellow Lumber Co. He became vice president of the Hill-Behan company in 1918.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Mrs. G. Brandt Leitch, and two sons, William G. George F. and Chester C. Funck. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

138TH INFANTRY RECEIVES HIGHEST POSSIBLE RATING

Adjudged "Very Satisfactory" at National Guard Camp at Nevada, Mo.

Under the scrutiny of a board of regular army officers, instead of a single officer as in previous years, the 138th Infantry, Missouri National Guard, won the highest possible rating for military efficiency at its annual encampment, Col. Stephen E. Lowe, commanding officer, reported yesterday to the Citizens' Military Committee.

With a rating of "very satisfactory," the infantry outfit was the second St. Louis National Guard contingent to win the highest grade. The 35th Division Air Service received the same designation at its encampment.

The 138th Infantry headquarters and two battalions are in St. Louis. The third battalion being scattered in the northern part of the State. A total of 800 enlisted men and 65 officers attended the annual encampment at Nevada, Mo.

SAYS 'FIGHTING IRISH' HAVE GONE FOREVER

Archbishop Glennon Finds Free State Inhabitants Ultra-Conservative.

One of the strongest impressions Archbishop Glennon received on his vacation trip to Ireland, from which he returned yesterday, was the rapid disappearance of the "fighting Irish," he said in an interview today at his home, 4510 Lindell boulevard.

"The Irish are becoming an ultra-conservative race," he said. "An Englishman once offered to settle the Irish question by putting a barrel of whiskey in the center of Ireland and furnishing plenty of whiskey. He thought: all the Irish would arrive at about the same time and the race would soon be decimated in the natural course of events. I doubt if that would happen today. The country is tranquil and smoothly governed."

"The fighting Irish are gone. The late J. B. Sheridan, the old-time sports writer and philosopher, used to explain this by saying the Irish had left the coast and gone to the cities and eaten too much breakfast food. I suppose he was right. Your prize fighters with Irish names today are Lithuanians or something else."

Great interest was manifested in Ireland over a battery developed by a young Irishman whose experiments are financed by the Free State Government, the Archbishop said. It will power a train for a 175-mile trip and can be recharged in 15 minutes, he said.

"Outside of that, there isn't much news in Ireland," said the Archbishop. "The grass about Kildare and Meath and West Meath, where I visited, is greener than usual due to the heavy rains, and the people seem contented. I didn't go to see you know; I went to rusticate. But I think I'll need another i. t. as one does after a vacation."

THEATER MANAGERS PROPOSE CHANGE IN STAGE HAND RULES

Conference Held Between Representatives of Legitimate Houses and Union.

A conference between representatives of the Stage Hands' Union and the American and Shubert Theaters was held yesterday to discuss a new working agreement for the coming season, which opens the later part of this month.

A proposed agreement suggested by theater managers will be presented at a mass meeting of the union next Tuesday. The proposal contains minor changes in working rules. The stage hands recently signed a new agreement with local movie houses, but theater owners may appeal to the international union for a reduction in the number of employees, due to the abandonment of stage shows.

No change in the dispute between union musicians and movie houses was reported today, and no conferences are pending. Orchestras were discontinued at all the theaters Sept. 1, although the musicians' contract with the Missouri and Ambassador Theaters does not expire until Sept. 19. Orchestras at the two theaters are receiving pay, but do not play. The difficulty resulted from an attempt by the union to increase the orchestra at the St. Louis Theater from 12 to 20 men.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK.

NO spot so successfully turns back the years for me as Coney Island. It is the one amusement resort that transforms the sourest curmudgeon into a Peter Pan. And this past summer Coney did not fail to live up to its chirping anthem: "Bigger and Better."

There are three distinct classes in this whirling world of make-believe. Those who visit it looting vainly to see Beck and express his resentment, he finally hired a horse and cab, donned a coachman's uniform and waited for him. When Beck appeared, the comedian tugged at the reins shouting: "Beck, you—Beck, you—"

The latter have the most fun. They live and play there from April 15 to the closing in September. Coney to them is a seaside resort where studied informality stamps the elect—the happy Mothers and children wear only bathing suits during the entire season.

To be "smart" at Coney was an elegant suffering "horse laugh." The seasoned Coney Islanders come nearest to the supreme joy of beach combing, without its discomforts, that the world knows. The chief charm of Coney is that life is shaken up of its monotonous conventions.

Thousands who swarm the beach from sunup until sundown are housed in mere huts, furnished only with such bare necessities as a bed, table, chair and cookstove. The glittering parabola of dips of death, paper mache what-nots is as unknown as Broadway to the real New Yorker.

This summer I visited a former chauffeur who, with his wife and three children, occupied a three-room lean-to on the lower end of the island. His expenses for the first six weeks were less than $15 weekly. He hadn't the creature comforts, but everything else of the expensive spa.

He saved $200 for a three months' outing and expected this sum to cover all expense. This is a side of the resort those who visit it merely to chase thrills, devour hot dogs and frozen custard, rarely see. Next season Coney's war works are to include columnists.

TWO CHANGES IN PASTORATES IN THE M. E. CHURCH SOUTH

The Rev. A. J. Gearhard and the Rev. Fred Armstrong of Arlington to Move.

Two changes in St. Louis pastorate of the Methodist Church, South, have been announced in advance of the annual St. Louis Conference, to be held at University City, University City, beginning Oct. 15.

The Rev. Dr. A. J. Gearhard, pastor of Cabanne Church, Goodfellow and Bartmer avenues, will remove to Excelsior Springs, Mo., after the October conference. The Rev. Fred Armstrong of Arlington Church, Union boulevard and Maffitt avenue, will go to Salisbury, Mo. The vacancies thus created will be filled at the conference. The two changes were announced at the Missouri Conference, which has just been held at Mexico. The Missouri Conference embraces the central and western parts of the State, and the St. Louis Conference chiefly the southeast section.

BOB GARLAND, dramatic critic of the Telegram, post-cards from Gallopola, O.: "The boys around the drug store never heard of you—but they know all about you now."

I knew someone would eventually spill the beans.

SIDNEY SKOLSKY, tells of the comedian dismissed by Martin Beck, vaudeville magnate. Trying vainly to see Beck and express his resentment, he finally hired a horse and cab, donned a coachman's uniform and waited for him. When Beck appeared, the comedian tugged at the reins shouting: "Beck, you—Beck, you—"

WISSE cracking experts furnish gaps for comedians are "stoges," similar to the gag men of Hollywood. Their prices vary but top for a night was $100 paid by Al Johnson. He heard it across a cafe table, a spontaneous wheeze—and peeled off a "yard" for the amazed punster for sole rights.

OUTSTANDING nifty toasters are Bugs Baer, Wilson Mizner, Grant Clarke, Arthur Caesar, Joe Frisco and Jack Benny. Some of their best lines were buried in repartee which collected no royalties.

I THINK Bugs Baer's best was I when after entertaining a large group in a night gym joint he cried: "Walter, my check and a night wig!" It was Arthur Caesar who printed across his bank checks: "If at first you don't succeed, try again!"

A DODDERING grayhead is entitled to a poetical moment now and then. This morning I passed the graceful and arresting Harriet Hector, the danseuse, along Forty-ninth street, and Wordsworth's lines have haunted me since: "A dancing shape, an image gay, To haunt, to startle and waylay!"

FROM a California civic magazine: "McIntyre sometimes strikes us as brilliant, other times as so so and now and then positively boring."

Make up your mind. We have "second company" nerves as it is.

LEONARD A. BUSBY, PRESIDENT OF CHICAGO CAR LINES, DIES

61 Years Old; Practiced Law and Was Director in Numerous Corporations.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Leonard A. Busby, president of the Chicago City Railway Co., and a leader in business affairs here for many years, died today. He was 61 years old.

On Labor day, Busby was taken to Presbyterian Hospital for observation of prostate gland trouble from which he had suffered for three years. He underwent an operation yesterday and failed to rally.

Born in Harrison County, O., Busby began the practice of law in Chicago in 1895. He became counsel for various South Side street railway companies and later president of the Chicago City Railway Co., and of the Chicago surface lines. He was a director in numerous corporations.

Mrs. Reynolds Craig Frampton, 2314 Westmoreland drive, and her daughter, Miss Clara, will depart today for Baltimore, Md., to spend some time with Mr. and Mrs. Frampton's daughter, Mrs. Van Lear Black and Mr. Black, who recently have moved from Lancaster, Pa., to Baltimore. Mr. and Mrs. Frampton and Miss Frampton recently returned from a summer in California.

Miss Veronica Smith, daughter of Mrs. R. F. X. Smith, 5177 Vernon avenue, will leave next week for Madison, Wis., where she will attend Villa Maria. Her brother, Richard Smith, will leave Saturday for Washington to attend Georgetown University.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

WITH all the traditional features of a military wedding, Miss Mildred Lucille Bell, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Ota Walter Bell, 4116 Lindell boulevard, became the bride of Lieut. Conrad C. Beck Jr., U. S. A., of Hutchinson, Kan., at 3.30 o'clock last evening at the home of her parents. The Rev. M. S. Eber of St. Louis Cathedral officiated. The large number of guests was followed by a reception.

Miss Lorraine de Courval Bell was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant, and Capt. Alva L. Penn, U. S. A., was best man. Col. Le Roy Kingsland Robbins, commanding the 40th Infantry, of which regiment the bride is the official "daughter," and Col. Horace S. Rumsey, commanding the 30th Field Artillery, to which Lieut. Beck is attached, were groomsmen, with Lieut. B. St. Aubin Bell, brother of the bride, and Lieut. Edgar A. Burmyer Jr.

The following officers of the 40th Infantry as uniters formed an arch of crossed sabers at the foot of the stairs: Maj. Daniel S. Smith, Capt. William R. Gentry, Capt. Richard J. Whelan, Lieut. Richard G. Rieffing, Lieut. Fredrick D. Stillman, Lieut. Gustav B. Moeller, Lieut. Oscar A. Schroeter and Lieut. Clinton H. Hall.

The bride, on the arm of her father, who was in formal military uniform, descended the smiling garlanded stairway and passed under the arch of crossed sabers to the drawing room. The marriage service was read before a French Empire mirror banked in ferns and gladioli and lilies at each side.

A military appointments were further emphasized by large American flags which covered the walls at either side of the mirror. The silken standard of the 40th Infantry and the American flag were arranged at the altar. The room was lighted by cathedral tapers in candelabra. The bride was gown in ivory-toned satin made on modified princess lines. The long, close-fitting bodice, terminating in a V, was trimmed in a bertha of rose point lace, an heirloom in the bride's family, and was caught at the front of the bodice with a small cluster of orange blossoms. The long skirt touched the floor and swept into a circular train and her veil of ivory-tinted tulle fell from a coronet of the lace surrounding a tulle cap. A shawl of old family rose point lace was applied on the tulle train. She carried a bouquet of lilacs of the valley. Her only jewelry was a diamond and platinum pin, the gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor wore a gown of periwinkle satin made on long lines. The bodice was cut a la mode V and a peplum fell from the low-placed hipline. She carried a bouquet of tallman roses. Mrs. Bell wore a beaded gown of French blue chiffon and Mrs. Beck wore a gown of black velvet and cream lace. Their flowers were tallman roses and lilies of the valley worn in shoulder corsages.

Lieut. Beck and his bride departed last night for Fort Sill, Ok., where he has been ordered to the Artillery School of Fire. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas and was graduated from the Sacred Heart Convent, Maryville, Holton Arms School, Washington, and took a post-graduate course at Notre Dame College in Baltimore. Among the out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad C. Beck of Hutchinson, and their son, Clyde Beck.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Steedman, 32 Westmoreland place, and their daughter, Miss Almira Steedman, are expected home today from Wequetonung, Mich., where they have been for the summer.

FURLONG BACK FROM AFRICA

Explorer Finds Relics of Stanley Expedition.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Col. C. Wellington Furlong, explorer and author, has returned from an 800-mile trip through Eastern and Central Africa, bringing with him relics of the Sir Henry Stanley expedition to find David Livingstone, ethnological records of pigmy tribes, a collection of native materials, skins, 10,000 feet of motion picture film and 3000 still negatives.

Col. Furlong, who lives in Boston and who has a long record of exploration in many parts of the globe, says the principal accomplishment of his expedition was the study of the pigmies in the Ituri forest. His complete collection of pigmy objects will be presented to a museum.

DRY LEADERS ASSAILED BY MRS. MCCORMICK

Says Anti-Saloon Chiefs Have No Right to Oppose Referendum Poll.

By the Associated Press.
BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Sept. 9.—While disclaiming any part in the movement to place the prohibition referendum before Illinois voters next November, Congresswoman Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial candidate, in a campaign address today declared that no citizen "has any right to oppose this poll."

She said even the liquor problem was less important than "another issue which has been raised in Illinois the last few days," the right of people to petition the Government.

"It seems strange," she said, "that here in Illinois in 1930 we should be called on to debate the question of the right of our citizens to petition."

"Several thousand citizens have signed this petition for a referendum," she continued, proceeding under "their constitutional rights and under their rights specifically provided by the laws of this State," and as a result "certain leaders of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois have taken the field and their first attack is on this legal and constitutional proposal. 'The league,' she said, 'would have me oppose this legal petition now and ignore it later,' but she said 'I will listen to no counsel which outrages every conviction I have ever held on the subject of majority rule, of popular government and of the sanctity of the Constitution.'"

Mrs. McCormick reaffirmed her statement in a speech before the Republican State convention that "if a majority in Illinois expressed a desire on Nov. 4 for a repeal of the eighteenth amendment" she would accept the result. At the same time she reiterated her conviction that she was personally a dry and said "no intoxicating liquor is kept or served in my home."

"You Cannot Enforce Prohibition"

unusually emphatic both in words and gesture. As he was leaving the room, however, Miss Agnes Williams, one of the Vice President's executive secretaries, said: "I wouldn't be surprised if Mr. Curtis hadn't forgotten about another—I think it was a request in which the Spa Chemical Co. of New York figured."

"Vice President Curtis, however, was so insistent that he is correct that he went to the office of Commissioner Doran today to look at the correspondence files of Doran which should contain duplicates of all correspondence bearing on the request for the Spa Chemical Co. permit. At Doran's office he was informed that Doran is on a business trip and that the rulings are that nobody is to be given access to the files in his absence. Vice President Curtis must wait until Commissioner Doran's return Thursday before he can have access to the latter's files."

The Record in an editorial says: "What stronger confirmation could be given to the contention that the Volstead act turns the Federal Constitution into a police code than Maj. Campbell's statement that New York today has less prohibition, less liquor traffic regulation than it had before Federal prohibition?"

"So vivid a picture of the promotion of the political fortunes through corruption has not been drawn since prohibition began. Government trading privilege (to defy the law in safety) for campaign contributions; political favors for bootleg concessions."

"Maj. Campbell's service as an administrator of the unenforceable prohibition law failed, but his service to the nation will have been immeasurable if it leads others to face facts and recognize realities."

prevented the reds from re-entering the city of Shansi, a portion of which they pillaged and burned Friday.

Serious trouble was expected by authorities from a band of 6000 former Government troops who declared their independence and were pillaging villages near Ichang, Hupeh. The soldiers, whose commanding officer was held prisoner by Nationalist authorities at Ichang, were reported to have killed many villagers and to have tossed their bodies into the Yangtze.

Fate of Alton Family in Shansi Is in Doubt.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The reported entrance into Shansi of Red forces, reported to the State Department, left in doubt the fate of American citizens known to have resided there. Four Americans were reported safe aboard Japanese vessels, but their identity was not disclosed. Whether more were in the city could not be ascertained. Department records list as Shansi residents the Rev. and Mrs.

Baldwin's Sale of Municipal Opera Artists' Pianos

NOW they can be bought... the beautiful baby grand and upright pianos, so carefully chosen and used during the opera season, by the famous artists of the St. Louis Municipal Opera... at drastically reduced prices.

Think of it! An opportunity to own an instrument that will be a true heirloom, bearing the autographed signature of a world famous artist; bearing, too, his personal approval of tone, action and case; a piano that has been mellowed and ripened by the few weeks of use it has had;

and withal, you will pay much less for it than if it had never received this distinction.

"Choose Your Piano as the Artists Do." Come in, as did Ceeley, Carlisle, Robertson, Sheehan, Bamboschek and many others; inspect these lovely instruments, examine their lustrous cases, run your fingers over their keys of precious ivory; listen to their exquisite tones; then look at the price tags. Never have music lovers had so rare an opportunity. And come quickly, we suggest, for with prices ranging from $235 to $1,500, they cannot remain long unsold.

In addition to these artist-autographed pianos, there are many other distinguished instruments, of well-known Baldwin quality, attractively priced and guaranteed in every way. Our special monthly budget plan applies on all—and your old piano will be accepted in part payment, regardless of make or age.

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 9 P. M.

CHARLES M. HAY BLAMES G. O. P. FOR MARKET CRASH

Tells Kansas Democrats That Hoover Failed to Warn the People.

By the Associated Press.
PARSONS, Kan., Sept. 9.—Speaking to 200 Democratic party leaders of Kansas, Charles M. Hay, St. Louis, Democratic nominee for United States Senator from Missouri in 1928, and dry leader, last night in a prepared address denounced the Republican national administration for "its failure to warn the people" of the impending stock market crash last year and charged Republican policies contributed "toward bringing on the present appalling conditions." He was the principal speaker at a Democratic "love feast."

"The simplest-minded man on the street," Hay said, "now knows and understands and will be likely to remember at least until the November election, that neither Republicanism nor protectionism is synonymous with prosperity."

"The country will be filled with whispering and oily-voiced explanations that these conditions are the result of forces and causes over which the party has no control. I do not charge that present business conditions solely are due to Republican policies, but I do assert that those policies made a direct and distinct contribution toward the bringing on of the present appalling conditions. Can anyone doubt that the stock market crash was the result of the attitude of Government toward big business during the Harding and Coolidge administrations?"

DRY LAW INDICTMENT AGAINST CONGRESSMAN DISMISSED

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—An appeal from a District of Columbia Supreme Court decision sustaining the demurrer of Congressman Denison, (Rep.) of Illinois, to an indictment charging him with possession of liquor in his office here in January, 1928, was ordered yesterday by the Department of Justice.

The court held the indictment did not comply with constitutional requirements, but District Attorney Rever pointed out that every indictment reported by the Federal grand jury in a case involving sale of liquor contained a possession count in language identical with that in the Denison indictment.

The charge against Denison grew out of the discovery of a leaking trunk and suitcase at the Union Station here and later reported traced to his office in the House office building.

ELKINS WILL SETTLEMENT Compromise Reported on Terms of Request to Woman.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Hallie Davis Elkins has withdrawn her objection before the District of Columbia Supreme Court to probating the will of her son, Stephen B. Elkins. Attorneys said a compromise on the terms of the will had been reached, but would not be made public.

Elkins died in New York last October. His estate was valued at more than $140,000 and the will provided a life annuity of $1000 monthly for Mrs. Evelyn I. Martin of Hollis, L. I., gave her an apartment in New York and 4000 acres of land in Virginia. The mother charged Elkins was incapable of making a will due to illness and that Mrs. Martin had used undue influence.

C. M. Higgins Quits Standard Oil.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Charles M. Higgins, after 57 years with the Standard Oil interests, resigned yesterday as Vice-President of Standard Oil of New York. He joined Standard of Ohio when he was 15, and remained with it until 1892. This was the period of John D. Rockefeller's greatest consolidations.

Senator at Jefferson City Asserts That President Has Disappointed Everyone, Even His Friends.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 9.—The Hoover administration was assailed today by Senator Harry B. Hawes for its "record of failure during the last two years."

Speaking at the State Democratic Platform Convention here, Senator Hawes said President Hoover "so far had disappointed everyone, even his own friends." He said the Republican party on the defensive, "making apologies and excuses," but declared there could be no shifting of responsibility, since the "Republican administration is in complete control of the Federal Government."

"We were told," he said, "that Mr. Hoover was a great organizer, that having succeeded in mining engineering enterprises in foreign countries, he would become a great engineer of government."

"An extra session of Congress was called for the benefit of the farmer, and a so-called farm commission was created which has not helped the farmer, has only succeeded in disarranging the old methods of handling our farm products. It has not successfully provided a new method. So we find that the farmer and the wholesale dealer in farm products are both distressed and uncertain of the future."

"Additional Burden of Tax." "The extra session of Congress was also called for the purpose of a limited revision of the tariff. It together with the regular session, lasted for 15 months. Its greatest achievement was an education of the public of the 'evil' policy of special favors. New and progressive methods of administration were proposed by Democrats and were defeated. Everything the farmer and the consumer uses has an additional burden of tax upon it."

"Democrats proposed a Tariff Commission which would report to and respond to the Congress. The President insisted upon having a Tariff Commission that would report to the President."

"The position of an advocate or counsel for the people, who are unrepresented in controversies before the Tariff Commission, was proposed by the Democrats, and was eliminated by the administration."

"The President's only effort during the long controversy was to insist upon more power for the President, more authority for the executive, more curtailment of the organic powers of the Congress. Silent upon other subjects, he was quick to interfere where an effort was made to secure a flexible tariff provision under the control of Congress, and demanded a flexible tariff provision only under the President's direction."

"Silent on Other Subjects." "On all other subjects he was silent. He failed to express an opinion failed to openly advise. If there was a quiet, underground influence brought to bear by him, we have a record of what was done, now written into law."

"We have created antagonisms and hostilities throughout the world. Remonstrances, protests, retaliations are coming from those foreign nations to whom we must sell our surplus in order to maintain our domestic prices."

"During the campaign the President promised he would appoint a commission to investigate and report upon the subject of prohibition, the subject of which is agitating our people, and in certain sections of the nation is the overwhelming, predominant issue. This commission held its first meeting behind closed doors and it has continued to meet in secret."

"About the Commissions." "When a complex question requiring decision has arisen, the President, instead of deciding that question himself and giving the public the benefit of his individual judgment, has abandoned the course of every President from Washington and Coolidge, by asking for the appointment of a commission to do his thinking for him."

"He refused to accept responsibility. If a commission's findings strike a popular cord, then it is the President's achievement. If the commission's findings are repudiated, then it is the commission's responsibility—a very safe political procedure."

Hawes said he would aid the State committee in the forthcoming campaign "as it may direct." He predicted this "is a Democratic year, but the victory must be so decisive that it will insure the election of a Democratic President in 1932. If the nominee is wisely and cautiously selected, this will be done."

Alimony Club Gets Charter.
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 9.—The Alimony Club of America was granted a State charter today by Secretary of State Stratton. The club's purpose is "to associate men interested in problems of domestic relationships; especially in matters relating to new legislation on the subject of awards of alimony and the judicial methods of enforcing the same." Directors of the club are Oswald Mackie, John Murray and Phillip Collins, all of Chicago.

Chief Justice of Criminal Court Says Witnesses Will Receive Protection of Secrecy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Chief Justice John P. McDermott of the Criminal Court today instructed the September grand jury to investigate "the growing menace of labor racketeering in Chicago."

"Predatory interests, by use of coercive methods, including every form of violence, are seeking domination and control of the trades unions and business," he said.

Judge McDermott requested the jurors to invite representatives of labor organizations and businesses before them to disclose under protection of the law and the secrecy of the grand jury evidence which would lead to the eventual conviction of those who attempt to rule by intimidation, extortion and bombing.

Employee of Cleveland (O.) Firm Forced to Open Strong Box.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 9.—Two robbers forced Edward Kelly, 23 years old, department manager of the Telling-Boelle Vernon Co., to open the company's safe and escaped with $11,588 early today.

Kelly told police he was about to go home after visiting at the home of a young woman, when the robbers halted him and ordered him to drive to the company's headquarters.

The robbery was conducted so quietly that it was unnoticed by the watchman or a crowd which gathered in front of the place after an automobile accident.

ODOR OF WHISKY LEADS POLICE TO STILL AT 5111 SHAW
15 Gallons of Alcohol and 250 of Mash Found; Two Men Arrested.

The attention of police was attracted to a house at 5111 Shaw avenue last night by the odor of whisky. There they found a still, 15 gallons of alcohol and 250 gallons of mash. The still was warm.

Two men who said they were Joseph Trolie and his son, John, were arrested.

When a policeman saw two men come from a dwelling at 2340 (rear) Mulanphy street, he approached to question them. Each threw a pint bottle to the pavement, breaking it. The policeman, reporting that the bottles contained whisky, arrested the men, who said they were William Jaggle, 2337 Madison street, and George Woods, 2083 Cass avenue.

Returning to the Mulanphy street address, police arrested William Bomarito on finding whisky and beer there. In response to a radio message, C. M. Hughes of Kirksville.

PERU SENDS SOLDIERS TO GUARD U. S. MINES

Three Americans Still Held—Contractor Detained but Released.

By the Associated Press.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 9.—The Pro-fector of the Department of Lima says Lieutenant-Commander Harold B. Grov, Charles W. Sutton and J. H. Gildred, all Americans, are still being detained by the Government.

Gildred, manager of the J. H.
Gildred Co., and American concern building the new Palace of Justice and new market buildings, has been detained pending audit of funds received under former President Leguia's administration.

The authorities announced today that Walter C. Hebard, American detained by the Callao authorities, when about to sail for Valparaiso, had been released after an hour's detention and permitted to leave with his family. He-bard is general manager of the Foundation Co., American contractors who handled many sanitation and paving jobs in Peru.

One hundred and fifty troops have been sent to the Cerro de Pasco Copper mining region, where employees have demanded improvement in working conditions from the Cerro de Pasco company, an American concern, which owns most of the mines in that district.

Another 100 soldiers are to be sent at once to put down any trouble which may arise as a consequence of the demands. Fifteen thousand men are employed at the Cerro de Pasco mines.

The Governments of Ecuador and Italy have recognized the military junta formed by Lieutenant-Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro
when he overthrew the Leguia Government. The Chilean Ambassador, Rios Gallardo, denied the report that he intended to retire with his staff. The Uruguayan legation has decided to withdraw. It is understood, and in other diplomatic circles it is reported that uncertainty is felt regarding the junta.

The Government has ordered two physicians to see the deposed President, daily at San Lorenzo Isle, the penal institution where he is confined, seriously ill with a nervous breakdown.

The State Department in Washington announced Sunday that Grov and Sutton soon would be released through the efforts of Ambassador Fred M. Dearing but would have to stand civil trial.

Grov, who was head of the Peruvian air service under the deposed President, was arrested shortly after the recent revolt began and the Government at that time announced he would be court-martialled for intention to bomb the city of Arequipa.

Sutton, an engineer, was held on charges of mishandling funds of an irrigation project.

FAITH BALDWIN Who Wrote
"THE OFFICE WIFE"

CHAPTER XVII.

HE stood perfectly still. He heard the apartment door close. Then he went back to his chair and sat down. His hands were shaking. He clasped them together in the physical effort to control their trembling.

She'd—name Eve.

No, it was unthinkable.

But, to divorce him, to leave him, to go forth as the injured wife, to force him to support her—all because he bored her, because he couldn't afford to keep her as men keep their wives—or mistresses.

His mind shrank back from the word. The word she had used in connection with Eve Harkness. But it was the right word for Charlotte. She hadn't been more to him than a mistress after all, and not—she laughed aloud—a very good one at that.

There was no getting away from facts. He had to face the immediate issue and face it squarely. She had meant what she said, every word of it.

It was up to him, then. Someone had to be sacrificed. It could not be Eve.

He groaned aloud. The sweat stood out on his forehead. He could taste it on his lips, cold, salt, bitter.

If Eve knew? But she must never know. She must never know that there were such women in this world.

Because he was caught in a chaos of thought, bewilderment, anger and shame, all sorts of related and unrelated pictures came into his mind: Ketcham's bilious face. . . Eve, bending over him, the glass of water in her hand. . . Charlotte, as he first had seen her in the New Haven drugstore. . . Bedford walking through the restaurant, arrogant and self-satisfied. . . Eve. . . Eve. . . A snarl of poorly filed through his mind like a blind ghost:

"O world be nobler for her sake if she but knew these as thou art—"

How did the thing go. . . something about "Her tender heart for pain and very shame would break. . ."

Yes, that was it. For pain and very shame. When Eliza came, in the morning he was still sitting there, cold pipe beside him, half awake and half asleep in the chair. Eliza, creeping into the empty bedroom, drew her own conclusions and got his breakfast, loose-lipped with curiosity.

HE telephoned to the office. He was not well. Would not be in today. Did he, some one asked him, wish Miss Harkness to come down and take letters? No, he almost shouted back, he did not. He phoned Helene later. Helene answered, very cool:

"Yes. . . Mrs. Carter speaking. . ."

"This is Stephen—Stephen Dane. Will you tell Charlotte I'll be up to see her about 4 o'clock. Ask her to be alone, please," he added curtly.

"Very well—"

He waited, the receiver at his ear. Presently Helene's voice came to him:

"She'll see you at 4, Stephen."

At 4 he was in Helene's small, exquisite apartment. Charlotte was there, alone as he had asked her to be, sitting in the cool, green living room, with its stippled walls and charming summer drape.

Stephen sat down. This woman was his wife. But he felt awkward. He despised her so that he was numb with it.

"I've thought it over. Have your own way," he surrendered, heavily, "divorce me—any way you please."

"Ah!"

She was controlled, even in her triumph. She thought of Harry Stoddard, and her heart leaped. But that was all in the future. She said:

"I can go to Reno—"

"No. I can't afford it. It's out of the question. I'll give you an uncontested divorce in this state. Find a lawyer. I'll see him. It's criminal, you know," he warned her, "criminal. . . but. . . it has to be. But I must have your word that no one—no one I know shall be brought into it—"

"You have it," She rose, looking 10 years younger, looking a girl again.

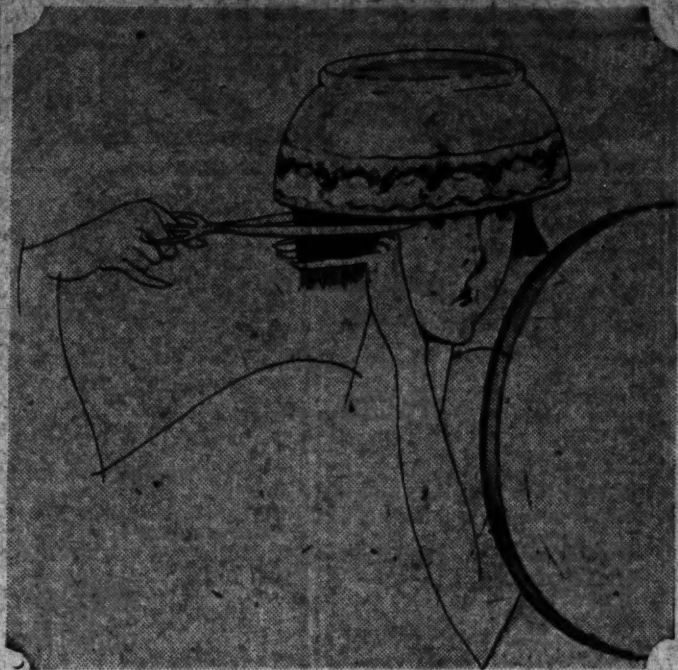

"Stephen. . . don't. . . look so. It will be all right. . . you'll be so much happier. . . and so shall I."

"I've made you so unhappy, then," he asked, in sudden brief wonder.

"Yes—oh, not you, perhaps—but, everything. We were never suited. We should never have married. Let's part friends."

"You—you—what will you do now?"

"I shall stay with Helene. She's asked me. Her maid will go to the apartment and pack my things. I don't want to go back there, Stephen. And—I have seen a law-

Cut it yourself, and use a bowl.

By MAY BOSMAN.

THE return from a year in the country. The decision to get all dressed up and go right to the theater. The streets. The lights. The crowds. The traffic problem. The late arrival. The dark house. The clumsy usher. The seats that are 12 rows back and not nine, as represented. The show that is as rotten as shows were before you went to the country. The thought that you have been robbed by the ticket agency.

The first intermission. The lights that hurt your eyes, but are not strong enough to enable you to read your program. The women all around you with hair set in perfect waves. Like a wooden head in a hair dresser's window. Your thought that you really should have a permanent and your hair set. Your hair always looks like—oh, well! The feeling of strangeness. The impression that styles certainly have changed. That skirts are longer. Your remark that women seem to be letting their hair grow. The young ones, anyway. You can't see a boyish bob in the theater. The husband who says "hump."

The second act. The actresses who are wearing skirts almost down to their ankles. Longer than in the first act. But the first act was morning in a country club. This is late afternoon. The sleek heads of the actresses who are not wearing hats. Your observation that the actresses are letting their hair grow. And wearing simply terribly long skirts.

The second intermission. The husband who says he thinks he'll stretch his legs and have a smoke. Of course you don't want to come, too. Of course you don't. The return of the husband. His remark that women are wearing long skirts. And letting their hair grow. Only the old women still have short hair. The young women all have hair that does up. The third act that can't be as bad as you think it is.

THE bridge party next day. The untidy condition of several of the women's heads. My dear, it is perfectly awful letting your hair grow. Don't do it. You won't do it. You always hated hair scrangling down your neck. You have loved your bob. So comfortable. So free. The next day is your day to go to the barber. Your thought that you might as well wait a few days. You wait a quately.

"Yes, I know. You're a brick, Eve."

HE was silent, thinking his own bitter thoughts. She did not interrupt him. She was remembering that night shortly after Charlotte had left him, when he had come unexpectedly to her apartment, rather late, distracted, a man beside himself with loneliness—a loneliness not of the body but of the soul—and poured out to her, torrentially, the whole story. . . or, at least, so she thought. That night had sealed their friendship.

Not the whole story. He was thinking that now as he sat there, mute, his plate untouched before him. She didn't know. She would never know, so help him God. He had told her merely that Charlotte had left him because she was tired of him; that they couldn't be an expensive divorce proceeding; that he couldn't keep her in Reno or abroad—that he would have to give her the usual ground, or rather the illusion of them.

"I had to tell someone. . . If you knew how I hate it. . . it's against my every tradition. You'll hear things of course. . . I wanted you to know the truth."

But she hadn't known it all; she didn't dream what he had spared her.

He was remembering now what form that sparing had taken: the sordid, ugly, entirely vulgar manufacturing of the evidence. . . the rather shabby hotel, and the shabby, not very young woman and the terrible waiting there together in the room, hot with the close, sudden heat of September—sitting there together—half dreamed—not speaking, not moving. He remembered that the woman had produced a pack of limp cards and laid a game of solitaire, a cigarette in the corner of her hard, painted mouth. But he remembered her eyes clearest of all. Patient eyes, haunted, static, and, somehow, understanding.

I Think I'll Let MY HAIR GROW

Day by Day, in Every Way, It's Getting Worse and Worse, Until—
Illustrations by
Leo KOBER

Your lengthy, lucid directions to him. Oh, yes, madam, he understands. Many ladies have it cut like that. . . then she is letting their hair grow. . . His work with the scissors. Your appearance in the mirror when he is through with you. The fool has given you a regular hair cut! Now you have to start letting your hair grow all over again.

The conapling comfort of your friends that barbers invariably do that. You must cut it yourself. Put a bowl over your head and cut around the bowl. Oh, all right. The wait for enough hair to show beneath a bowl. The growing conviction that every young woman has long hair and only old women are keeping their hair short. The disinclination to be seen while you are in the old class.

The long wait. The slow growth.

And there isn't a boyish bob in sight.

The day you think there is enough hair, except that it looks worse to trim yourself. The bowl slips. The dull scissors. The side you set too short and the side that is too long. Your husband's remark that you look awful. The friend's remark that letting your hair grow shows up all the gray hairs in it. The other friend's remark that she can't see any difference. Your gray hairs always showed. Your observation that you didn't know the gray showed. My dear! You should begin using henna.

THE fat blonde on the street car who wears her hair hanging down under her hat. Her laughter. Your effort next day to try yours that way, "conservatively." Your husband when he sees you. His remark that it is fine. You must always look at yourself in the dark when you wear braid. Oh, John, doesn't it look like that. Your decision to put the darned little invisible hairpins back in again.

The weeks. The months. You can't see any difference in your stiff prickly wreath in front of them.

The League of Women Voters is planning a national honor roll to be erected in Washington. The status of a woman may hold the scroll bearing the names of honor. The Daughters of the American Revolution have over 100,000 members. They have a large figure of a woman in their side yard. It was made by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney and is dedicated to the pioneer women of the D. A. R.

At first it was planned to have her majestically guard the Washington approach to the bridge. But she soon came off her pedestal and now saunters forlornly about from one unfinished span to another. The Fine Arts Commission will decide her fate when the bridge is completed.

Huddled in the basement of the Capitol are stone likenesses of Lucetta Mott Susan B. Anthony and Emmeline Pankhurst. One the figures were in stately hall upstairs. Loyal members of the national woman's party visit the marble stowaways once a year and lay a stiff prickly wreath in front of them.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Jago Goldston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Snakes And Snakebites

SNAKES are at one and the same time both useful and destructive.

Most of the non-poisonous snakes are useful in that they live upon rodents which are destructive to agriculture. On the other hand, poisonous snakes are responsible for hundreds of thousands of deaths, and constitute, in India for example, a major health problem.

Unless one knows snakes intimately, and can quickly recognize their forms and markings, it is impossible to distinguish the poisonous varieties from the innocuous ones from mere external appearance.

For practical purposes, except where the territory is positively known to be free from poisonous snakes, every snakebite should be treated with the greatest precaution.

Again, even if the snake be of the non-venomous variety, its bite produces a puncture-type wound, which is always liable to become infected.

Wherever there are snakes, and even in snakeless places, there are many so-called popular snakebite remedies. One of the most common is whisky. But there are literally hundreds of others.

Practically all of them are ineffective. Some, like too much alcohol, are positively injurious.

The only known remedy for poisonous snakebites, effective if administered quickly enough, is the anti-venin specific for the biting snake, or else a compounded anti-venin specific for a variety of the snakes common to a given territory.

This anti-venin, like diphtheria anti-toxin, is produced by injecting the venom (snake poison) into horses, and after a time abstracting from the blood of the horse the immunizing substance.

When this is injected into the person bitten, it counteracts or neutralizes the snake poison.

Yellowstone National Park is the home of 700 moose.

Snakes And Snakebites

Snakes are at one and the same time both useful and destructive. Most of the non-poisonous snakes are useful in that they live upon insects which are destructive to agriculture. On the other hand, poisonous snakes are responsible for the deaths of thousands of people, and constitute, in India for example, a major health problem. Unless one knows snakes intimately, and can quickly recognize their forms and markings, it is impossible to distinguish the poisonous varieties from the innocuous ones from mere external appearance.

For practical purposes, except where the territory is positively known to be free from poisonous snakes, every snakebite should be treated with the greatest precaution, even if the snake be of non-venomous variety, its bite produces a puncture-type wound, which is always liable to become infected.

Wherever there are snakes, and in snakeless places, there are many so-called popular snakebite remedies. One of the most common is whiskey. But there are really hundreds of others.

Practically all of them are ineffective. Some, like too much alcohol, are positively injurious. The only known remedy for poisonous snakebites, effective if administered quickly enough, is the anti-venin specific for the biting snake, or else a compound anti-venin specific for a variety of snakes common to a given territory.

This anti-venin, like diphtheria antitoxin, is produced by injecting the venom (snake poison) into horses, and after a time abstracted from the blood of the horse immunizing substance.

When this is injected into the person bitten, it counteracts or neutralizes the snake poison.

NOTHING UP MY SLEEVE

CHAPTER VII.

AUSTRALIA proved a veritable gold mine for me. I played at the Palace Theater in Sydney for six weeks. At the end of the first week I was able to take up the note given the steamship company for my baggage, settle my personal bills, and pay back the $2000 Ed Geach had expended for the building of my new show.

The manager was much pleased with his investment although he had the short end of the contract. He and I became staunch friends.

Two months had passed, and we were in Adelaide, when I said to Geach: "Can you guess how much money I had when I landed in Australia?" He shook his head. "Well, I had just exactly half-a-crown in my pocket when I landed on the wharf."

He didn't understand. "Why didn't you come to me? I should have been glad to cash a check for you."

"I did come to you; but not to cash a check. You did better than that—you let me have $2000."

"I lent you $2000?"

"Yes, only you didn't know it. I was dead broke at the time."

"That's all right," the manager replied seriously. "If you had spoken to me I would have taken you to my bank and fixed the matter up for you. Although it takes two months to get a reply from the States, I could have got you a line of credit by cable."

It was evident that Geach thought I had expected a draft from the States, which had been delayed in the mail.

"No," I said, "you did the best thing possible, and I want to thank you for it. You see, it was necessary for our success that you should lend me two thousand dollars. It was also necessary that you should not know you were lending it to me."

"I'll be hanged if I understand," said Geach helplessly.

"It's perfectly simple. That half-crown was all the money I had in the world."

"Do you mean to say you were dead broke when we signed that contract?"

I nodded.

Geach looked at me long and steadily and I could read the passing moods of incredulity, anger and admiration in his eyes. Finally he gasped: "Such Yankee nerve! If I had known that, you wouldn't have got away with the big end of it!"

He shut his desk, put on his hat, and linked his arm in mine. "You Yankees beat the world. Come along. The dinner is on me."

I stopped him. "Things are different now, Ed," I said. I pulled the contract from my pocket, tore it to pieces and threw the fragments on the floor. Geach stood in amazement while I shook his hand and nodded: "From now on, Ed, we go fifty-fifty!"

WE played Australia nine months altogether. The tour was successful throughout, and both Geach and myself realized handsome profits.

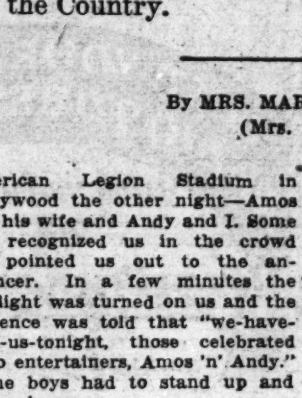

We played Adelaide and Perth and then went inland over a desert that was strewn with the wreckage of prospectors' camps. The country was gold-mad. We reached Adelaide, four hundred miles from Perth, from which water had to be pumped the entire distance.

ANDY AMOS.

AMERICAN Legion Stadium in Hollywood the other night—Amos and his wife Andy and I. Some one recognized us in the crowd and pointed us out to the announcer. In a few minutes the spotlight was turned on us and the audience was told that "we have with us tonight, those celebrated radio entertainers, Amos 'n' Andy."

The boys had to stand up and take a bow.

AMOS? You should have seen them fumbling with their hats, their programs or anything they could lay their hands upon. Andy turned scarlet. But a little later, a fight fan with a foghorn voice away up in the balcony, after watching a third-rate slap an ex-pug in the eye, sang out:

"Aw, sock 'im, fellah! I'm regusted with yuh!"

Again every one looked our way and Amos and Andy creamed with delight.

By themselves in a broadcasting room they are perfectly at ease and enthusiastic with their work in the limelight they get scared.

Amos 'n' Andy have been working together so many years they have almost identical habits. The same philosophy and the same glorious sense of humor. Andy has a horror of anything that crawls. "Tousand legs!" he calls them.

Amos has the same resentment. Andy likes to go to shows featuring comedians. So do Amos. Amos likes Eddie Cantor and has adored Bobby Clark of the team Clark & McCullough. So has Amos. Both admire Charlie Chaplin and Oliver and Hardy.

Amos has been interested in bounds of restraint in writing of the Chinese. I have met no finer people anywhere in the four quarters of the world.

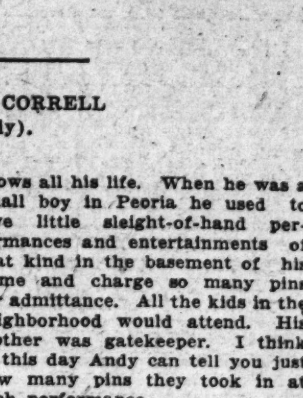

OUR performances in Hongkong were very successful. At that time there were about 5000 Europeans in the English city on the mountains and a fleet of British warships in the harbor. At the beginning of the second week the Chinese were buying tickets in advance and complaints appeared in the European papers about my allowing the natives to monopolize the better seats. I paid no attention to these complaints, and at the end of our third week our audiences were composed almost exclusively of Chinese.

One night, Prince Chang, who was as democratic as the Prince of Wales, sat with a party of friends in the first row. He showed the keenest interest in the performance and sent word that he wanted to see me after the show.

There was no railing around the orchestra pit, which was a foot lower than the main floor. I stood in the pit in front of the Prince. As he rose to greet me, I looked in astonishment as he straightened to his full height of 6 feet 4 inches. This, added to the depth of the orchestra pit where I stood, produced a remarkable illusion. The Prince had an apparent height of 7 feet 4 inches. He shook hands cordially and made me a present of his walking stick.

Our business increased, until it was necessary to give daily matinees in order to accommodate the native crowds.

shows all his life. When he was a small boy in Peoria he used to give little sleight-of-hand performances and entertainments of that kind in the basement of his home and charge so many pines for admittance. All the kids in the neighborhood would attend. His mother was gatekeeper. I think to this day Andy can tell you just how many pines they took in at each performance.

AFTER he graduated from the Peoria High School he obtained a job as secretary and stenographer for the State Superintendent of Public Instruction at Springfield. He held this for a year. Then he figured out that there wasn't any money in such white-collar employment. So he resigned.

To become a bricklayer! Then he became interested in amateur theatricals did black-face parts. Joined a booking agency and met Amos. They've been the closest of friends ever since.

The name Ruby Taylor was chosen for Amos' imaginary girl. The only after long consideration. The given names of so many darlings are taken from flowers or jewels. Among the flowers are pansy, rose, violet, daisy, blossom, carnation and heliotrope. Among the jewels are ruby, pearl, opal, garnet and Jasper. Andy decided that Ruby could be distinctly heard and easily remembered.

The boys constantly are on the lookout for ideas. They wander around together in out-of-the-way places, picking up incidents which might be developed into episodes. Just to see what it tasted like. Andy ate some possum once, but did not like it. Thought it was too greasy. He wanted to know something about this delicacy so close ally in tradition with the Negroes of the South.

Andy is just a regular husband who likes golf, poker, a drink of good liquor, home, his work—and chili con carne with tamales. Oh, how he likes his chili and tamales!

We four go together everywhere. And life seems wonderful.

Sho', sho', this is Andy.

Talks to PARENTS

By Alice Judson Beale

Patience Pays

FOR most women the task of bringing up a child is a much more trying job than they care to admit.

It is amazing to watch how many mothers permit themselves to become angry with their very small children.

It never brings good results to give way with a little child to feelings of annoyance. An angry mother simply confuses her child. He knows he is out of favor, but he does not necessarily know what to do to make things right.

Little children, too, are extremely irritable. Irritability in their elders breeds irritability in them. Anger toward them makes them defiant in turn.

Recently I observed how differently a certain group of children responded to different kinds of adult treatment.

When their play was being supervised by a wise and friendly nurse, they were sweet-tempered, tractable, busy and happy.

When they were left in charge of a short-tempered high school girl who exhibited annoyance at their calls upon her attention, those same children went through the day rude, loud, quarrelsome and defiant.

Anyone seeing them only with the nurse would consider them a singularly well-behaved and well-adjusted group of children. Seeing them with the high school girl they could not help but think of them as an ill-bred lot of hoodlums.

It pays to be patient with little children. Whenever we permit ourselves to be otherwise we are lessening between ourselves and them the fund of good will upon which such influence and effective authority as we may have depends.

PARIS MIDINETTES POORLY PAID

By HAZEL REAVIS

PARIS. Needles are flying and tongues are wagging happily again in the sewing rooms of the dressmaking house where midinettes recently struck for more money.

They got it. Now their pay envelopes contain from $1 a week to $2.50 weekly, depending on whether they are apprentices or experienced first hands.

The new wages are an increase of six per cent over the old. Thousands of sewing girls in Paris receive the same pay.

Their share of the prices paid for clothes in the big dressmaking houses is infinitesimal. The recent 12-hour strike occurred at a world-famous house where prices begin at $100 and work rapidly upward.

In addition to their wages the midinettes receive a hot lunch. For some of them it is the one solid meal of the day, for $2.50 a week will only go so far, even in Paris.

In spite of their forced frugality the midinettes manage to enjoy life. Most of them love their work and take pride in it.

Nevertheless the bogey of unemployment is never far away. They may be turned off on eight days' notice if a dull season descends on the dressmaking trade.

Style houses have been known to suddenly close down all but a few ateliers, throwing hundreds out of work without a chance of being taken on elsewhere.

Prices Rise 1 to 5 Points During Day, but Much of Advance Is Lost in Late Dealing and Some Issues Are Lower.

BULLS FIND PUBLIC DEMAND LACKING

Commodity Markets Are Stronger—Steel Reviews Are Cheerful and Bankers Take View Production Is Running Behind.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Bulls dispatched more favorable business statistics, bedecked themselves with outions proclaiming "Business is good," and did battle once again with the stubborn stock market today, piling up the largest day's transactions since Aug. 8, but achieving a scanty advance in share prices.

A long list of gains of 1 to 5 points was recorded soon after midday, but thereafter the advance began to falter, and before the close much of the day's advance was lost, and several shares were under the previous closing levels. Business reports were on the whole rather encouraging, but the general public remained rather cold to the bullish demonstrations in stocks.

During the afternoon, financial news tickers printed a statement by a well-known statistician indicating that consumption has been running ahead of production, and pointing to the possibility of a stampede of buying orders in certain lines of merchandise, but this was in the main a reiteration of what has been said in banking surveys for several weeks, and called appreciably to influence the market.

Public Demand Is Lacking.

Bulls are finding that the public appetite for equity shares has suffered greatly during the past year, and that it is now difficult to revive it. They point out that despite the vast increase in this sort of financing during the past two years, brokers' loans are down to the lowest point in three years, and stockholders' lists have expanded greatly, indicating that the public is holding more common stocks than ever before. On this evidence they base their hopes of stirring up a renewed eagerness to buy common stocks.

The commodity markets, in so far as they influenced stocks, were helpful. Cotton rallied more than a dollar a bale. Wheat sold up to 1 cent a bushel, reflecting better export buying, and corn closed about steady.

Closing stock quotations were irregularly higher, with gains of 1 to 5 points numerous, but several issues closed moderately lower. Transactions totaled about 2,475,000 shares. American Power & Light, Purdy Bakeries, Atchafalaya, Montgomery Ward, Coca-Cola and Simmons gained about 2 points. Radio, International Nickel, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, National Biscuit and Columbian Gas gained a point each. U. S. Steel sold up more than a point, to close off 36. Du Pont, New York Central, Johns Manville and Washington lost 1 to 2 points, and Ase 2.

Foreign exchanges showed little change. Firmness of the Canadian dollar was conspicuous, however, and another $1,800,000 in gold was reported to Montreal. The Canadian dollar closed at a premium of 15 1/2 cents.

Member Loans Decrease.
Loans to members of the New York Stock Exchange against stock collateral as of Sept. 2 amounted to $31 per cent of the market value of all listed shares on that date, a decrease of 0.18 per cent from 5.49 per cent Aug. 1. The ratio on Sept. 1 last year was 5.79 per cent.

The weekly steel reviews, while confusing owing to different methods of computing rates of production, and the effects of the Labor day holiday, were again cheerful. "Iron Age" reported that in consecutive weekly increases in iron production, carrying the industry up to 58 per cent of current capacity, against 52 per cent early in August.

Closing stock prices will be found on pages 12C, 13C, 14C and 15C.
